

HOUSE OF AYURVEDA - BATCH #173

Production Bible

Three Days Off The Multivitamin (Story VSL)

Analysis, locks, grade arc, prompt blocks, flow system

Document 1 of 5

Avatar Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware

Format Story VSL · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical · zero lip-sync

Stack Nano Banana Pro / GPT Image → image-to-video

Branch claude/ayurveda-batch-173-vsl-fb06lb

Production Bible — read this before you generate a single frame

House of Ayurveda · Avatar: Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical Zero lip-sync. She is never talking to camera. Everything is observational b-roll under VO.

PART 0 — What this script is actually doing

Before the shot list, the read. If you generate against the words instead of the mechanism, you get 80 pretty frames that don't sell anything.

The script is not about supplements. It's about eight years of being obedient to something that wasn't working, and the accident that gave her permission to stop. That's the emotional engine. Every visual choice below serves one of six jobs:

Block	Job it does	What the picture must make the viewer feel
Hook (0:00–0:20)	Pattern-interrupt + full-arc preview	"That's my counter." Recognition, then curiosity about the accident.
Problem (0:20–1:15)	Build the graveyard, then make it cost something	Accumulation → shame. The husband beat is the real hook, not the bottles.
Accident (1:15–2:00)	Re-hook. Remove her agency so she can't be blamed	Relief that she didn't choose to quit — it happened to her.
Labels (2:00–2:50)	Invalidate the old solution with a specific, checkable mechanism	"Wait, is mine magnesium oxide?" — the viewer gets up and checks.
Water + Copper (2:50–3:30)	Move the villain from the pills to the water. New category.	"I never thought about what I'm drinking it down with."
Cert (3:30–4:10)	De-risk. Make the claim verifiable, not asserted	Skepticism defused by physical proof they can replicate.
Transformation (4:10–5:00)	Pay off in relational terms, not symptom terms	The husband line is the close. Not sleep — being fun to be married to again.
Close (5:00–5:45)	Micro-commitment, no price, hand off to Page 1	"I should at least read the breakdown."

Three things the visuals must never do:

- 1. Never show the product before 3:30. The whole first half earns its credibility by being about her, not about a bottle. If a copper bottle appears at 1:00 it becomes an ad and retention dies.
- 2. Never show a smiling person until 4:37. The one real smile in this film is at the dinner table. If she smiles in the hook the arc is dead on arrival.
- 3. Never show a price, a discount, a badge, or a "limited time" anything. Value is communicated by the comparison shot at 5:05 (trash bag vs. one bottle) and nothing else.

The four load-bearing images of the whole film — if you only nail four, nail these: S09 ashwagandha next to her mother's photo · S14 the empty doorway after "he stopped asking" · S43 the bare counter with 23 ring-marks in the dust · S57 the magnet sliding off the copper.

PART 1 — Locks

1.1 Character lock (CHAR_REF)

Use the supplied character sheet as CHAR_REF on every single person-shot. Non-negotiable.

American woman, ~50–60. Ash/silver-blonde shoulder-length hair with a soft natural wave, warm hazel-brown eyes, fine lines at the eyes and mouth, faint sun damage on the cheekbones, no visible makeup, tortoiseshell reading glasses. Warm, tired, credible. Suburban everywoman.

Face rule: identical face in every frame. If a generation drifts the face, kill it — do not "fix it in the grade." Wardrobe changes across the timeline; the face does not.

1.2 Wardrobe states (the timeline lives here)

The film covers ~4 months. Wardrobe is your only clock. Do not mix these up.

Code	When	What
W1 — HOME/NOW	The present-tense telling. Bathroom, kitchen.	Cream chunky-knit cardigan, sage-grey crew tee, dark indigo slim jeans, grey felt slippers, tortoiseshell glasses pushed up on her head
W2 — NIGHT	All bed / 3am / waking beats	Soft heather-grey ribbed sleep tee, hair loose and slept-on, no glasses, bare feet
W3 — TRIP	Airport + sister's house (last May)	Navy quilted zip vest over the sage tee, same jeans, white leather sneakers, tan crossbody bag
W4 — RESEARCH	Desk, labels, late-night reading	W1 but cardigan sleeves pushed to the elbows and glasses on her face , hair tucked behind one ear
W5 — DINNER (Wk 3)	4:37–5:05 only	Soft clay-rust button blouse, no cardigan, hair tucked, small gold studs. Subtly more put-together — the recovery is in the wardrobe before it's in the dialogue

1.3 Locations

Code	Location	Fixed details (keep identical across every shot in that space)
L1	Master bathroom	Cream quartz counter, warm oak vanity, wide mirror, small window with a sheer curtain camera-left, greige tile, chrome faucet. Light always enters from camera-left.
L2	Kitchen	White shaker cabinets, warm oak butcher-block island, farmhouse sink under an east window, brass pulls, one ceramic fruit bowl
L3	Her bedroom	Oatmeal linen bedding, white duvet, walnut nightstand, small brass alarm clock, sheer curtain, grey-green wall
L4	Desk nook	Small walnut desk against a wall, silver laptop, stacked papers, a green banker's-style lamp, the scratched plastic water bottle
L5	Airport, 4am	Empty gate, floor-to-ceiling glass, blue-grey pre-dawn, wet tarmac reflections, one lit newsstand
L6	Sister's house	Warmer, slightly dated: floral wallpaper border, oak cabinets, patterned quilt in the guest room. Must read as not her home
L7	Dining room	Small round table, single warm pendant low over it, two pasta bowls, one glass of red
L8	Hall closet	White wire shelving, folded linens, one flat cardboard box
L9	Archival / hospital	No character. 1890s Swiss lab; modern hospital corridor

1.4 The lighting & grade arc (this is the emotional spine)

Colour does the persuasion. Ride this arc — it should be almost imperceptible shot-to-shot and undeniable across five minutes.

Grade	Blocks	Recipe
GRADE-A	0:00–1:15	Flat, cool-neutral overcast window light. Desaturated. Greenish-grey shadows. Low contrast, lifted blacks. ~5600K. "Clinical fatigue."
GRADE-B	1:15–1:45	Cold blue pre-dawn. ~4300K. Deep crushed shadows, hard sodium-orange accents from terminal signage.
GRADE-C	2:00–2:50	High-contrast task light — one warm pool on the labels, the rest of the room falling to black. ~3000K key against cool ambient. "Investigation."
GRADE-D	2:50–3:30	Amber archival. Tungsten, sepia-leaning browns, copper glints. Slight halation on highlights.
GRADE-E	4:10–4:37	Warmth returns. ~5000K clean morning daylight, gentle saturation lift, shadows open back up.
GRADE-F	4:37–5:45	Honey-warm practical. ~2900K pendant, rich and soft, creamy rolloff. Resolve.

Sister's house (1:45–2:00) is the first warmth in the film — a small bump toward E inside GRADE-B. That's deliberate. It's the visual "something changed" before the VO says it.

1.5 Camera language

- Observational documentary. The camera is a person in the room who isn't announcing themselves.
- Lenses: 35mm for rooms, 50mm for her at mid, 85mm for the intimate face holds, 100mm macro for all labels and product. Never wider than 28mm — no wide-angle face distortion.
- Height: eye-level or slightly below. Overhead only for the counter/trash-bag beats.
- Movement: micro-drift handheld, slow push, slow rack. No drone moves, no orbits, no crash zooms, no dutch angles, no lens flares. Every move should be under 15cm of travel.
- Depth: f/2.0 on objects and faces, f/4 on rooms. Let backgrounds go soft — it hides AI artefacts and reads as a real lens.

1.6 Global prompt blocks

Paste these around every shot prompt. Per-shot prompts below contain only the variables.

GLOBAL_PREFIX (prepend to every image prompt that contains her):

[ATTACH: CHAR_REF] Photorealistic documentary photograph, vertical 9:16 composition. The woman is identical to the attached reference – same face, same bone structure, same ash-blonde shoulder-length hair, same age, no makeup change, no beautification, no slimming. Candid unposed moment, she is not aware of the camera and never looks into it.

GLOBAL_SUFFIX (append to every image prompt):

Shot on a Sony A7 IV with a prime lens, natural available light only, visible skin texture and pores, fine facial down, faint sensor grain, slightly imperfect handheld framing with the subject a little off-centre, true-to-life colour, no retouching.

NEG (global negative — use in the negative field, or append as "avoid:" for GPT Image):

cartoon, 3D render, CGI, Pixar, illustration, anime, plastic skin, over-smoothed skin, beauty filter, airbrushed, perfect symmetrical teeth, stock-photo smile, model-like, glamour lighting, lens flare, HDR halo, oversaturated, teal-and-orange grade, extra fingers, malformed hands, warped or gibberish text, fake brand logos, watermark, wide-angle face distortion, looking at camera, cinematic letterbox bars, motion blur smear

Model notes: - Nano Banana Pro — best for anything with readable text (supplement facts panels, the lab report, the dosage card, the journal page). Spell the exact string you want in quotes. It will hold it. - GPT Image — better for the soft emotional face holds and the archival/hospital plates. Trim GLOBAL_PREFIX to two sentences for it; it degrades with very long prompts. - Generate 3-4 variants per shot minimum and cut for face-match first, composition second.

1.7 Real-asset rule (do not skip this)

Never generate the SGS certificate, the verification database screen, or any lab document.

Those are real documents; an AI-fabricated version of a lab certificate is a fabricated record, and it will not survive a compliance look — or a screenshot from a competitor. Same for the product itself.

Shot	Asset	Method
S53, S57, S58, S59, S60, S78, S79	The real copper bottle	Attach the real product photo as a second reference. Prompt as a composite/relight , not a description.
S54, S55	The real SGS certificate	Generate the empty counter/hands plate, comp the real cert page in post.
S56	The public database verification page	Real screen recording on a real phone. Comp into a generated hand-holding-phone plate.
S71	The 30-day guarantee box	Real packaging photo if it exists; otherwise a plain flat-folded kraft box, no printed claim visible.

Everything else in this film is generated.

PART 2 — The flow system (why it won't feel like "scene 1, scene 2, scene 3")

The single biggest thing separating an amateur AI VSL from a winner: shots don't cut, they hand off. Every boundary in the list below is assigned one of six handoffs. Build to the handoff, not to the shot.

Code	Handoff	How to build it
MATCH-SHAPE	Shot A ends on a shape, Shot B opens on the same shape	Round bottle cap → round clock face. Both at the same size and screen position.
MATCH-ACTION	A movement starts in A and completes in B	Her hand reaches out of frame right in A; a hand enters frame right in B, same speed.
WHIP-BY	A foreground object crosses the lens and wipes the frame	Her shoulder, a cabinet door, a passing traveller. Cut at maximum blur.
LIGHT-WIPE	A shadow or highlight sweeps the frame and you cut inside it	Curtain moves, headlights sweep a wall, she passes a lamp.
PAN-THROUGH	Camera is moving the same direction on both sides of the cut	A drifts left, B is already drifting left at the same rate. Reads as one continuous move.
FOCUS-HANDOFF	Rack out to blur at the end of A, open on blur and rack in on B	Best for jumps in time or place. The blur is the transition.

Rhythm law: the cut lands on the breath, not on the word. Cut a beat before the VO finishes the phrase — picture leads audio by ~4 frames. That's what makes it feel edited instead of assembled.

Pacing shape across the film: 2-3s cuts through the stack and the labels (accumulation, pressure) → 4-6s holds on the accident and the transformation (let it breathe) → the two longest holds in the whole film are S14 (empty doorway) and S69 (she cries into her pasta). Silence and stillness are the premium moments; you've earned them by then.

PART 3 — Deliverables checklist

- [] 01-HOOK-A.md — H1 swap-test hook, 7 shots
- [] 02-HOOK-B.md — H2 swap-test hook, 6 shots
- [] 03-BODY.md — S01-S80, the shared VSL body
- [] Real product photos supplied as second reference on all product shots
- [] Real SGS cert + real verification screen recording comped, never generated
- [] Face-match QC pass across all 93 shots before assembly
- [] Music: soft indie-folk, ~80 BPM — sparse under the stack, swell at 4:43, resolve on CTA
- [] CTA card → Page 1 (Dr. Chen advertorial)

HOUSE OF AYURVEDA - BATCH #173

Hook A (H1)

Three Days Off The Multivitamin (Story VSL)

0:00-0:20 - 7 shots - swap-test variant A

Document 2 of 5

Avatar Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware

Format Story VSL · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical · zero lip-sync

Stack Nano Banana Pro / GPT Image → image-to-video

Branch claude/ayurveda-batch-173-vsl-fb06lb

"I took twenty-three supplements every morning for eight years and never once felt fixed. The thing that finally worked was forgetting the entire bag on a trip and not taking a single one for five days. By day three, I slept through the night for the first time in two years."

Hook strategy: open on the most literal, most recognisable image in the entire avatar's life — a palm full of mismatched pills. No face for the first 3 seconds. Faces in frame 1 read as "ad"; hands read as "someone's life." Her face arrives at 0:06 exactly when the VO turns emotional ("never once felt fixed"), so the first thing you ever see of her is disappointment, not a greeting.

Prompts below assume GLOBAL_PREFIX + GLOBAL_SUFFIX + NEG from the bible.

H1-01 · 0:00–0:03.5 · 3.5s · COLD OPEN

VO: "I took twenty-three supplements every morning"

Why: The palm is the whole avatar in one image. It's absurd without commentary, which is what makes it stop the scroll. No face yet.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

Top-down macro shot, directly above a woman's open left palm cupped over a cream quartz bathroom counter. The palm already holds about fourteen mismatched pills and capsules — a chalky white oblong, two amber fish-oil softgels, a mustard-yellow turmeric capsule, a maroon capsule, a small pink tablet, a huge tan horse-pill. Her right hand is tipping one more capsule out of a white plastic supplement bottle held just above. Slightly ragged fingernails, one plain gold wedding band, dry skin across the knuckles. Behind and below the hand, thrown far out of focus, a long row of a dozen supplement bottles. 100mm macro, f/2.8, focus on the pills in the palm. Flat cool overcast daylight from a window camera-left, soft shadow to the right. GRADE-A: desaturated, greenish-grey shadows, low contrast.

MOTION (I2V)

Locked-off overhead shot, no camera move. One final capsule drops from the bottle into the palm and settles among the others with a tiny bounce. The palm tilts by three degrees under the weight. The pills shift slightly. Nothing else in the frame moves. 3 seconds, real-time, no slow motion.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the round white bottle cap sits top-right of frame; H1-02 opens on a faded circular label at the same size and screen position.

H1-02 · 0:03.5–0:06 · 2.5s

VO: "for eight years"

Why: Don't say eight years — show eight years. Sun-bleached labels, peeling corners, and dried water rings on the counter do the arithmetic for you. This is the shot that makes the whole premise credible.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

Extreme close-up, slightly low angle across a cream quartz bathroom counter, looking down a row of supplement bottles receding into shallow focus. The nearest label is visibly sun-faded and curling at one corner, its printing gone chalky, a dried adhesive ring where an old price sticker was peeled off. On the counter surface: three overlapping dried white water rings and a fine dusting of powder. 50mm, f/2.0, focus on the nearest curled label, everything beyond it dissolving. Flat cool window light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V)

Very slow 10cm dolly forward along the row of bottles, drifting past the faded label. The depth of field slides gently so the second and third bottles come into focus as the first falls out. Absolutely no other movement. 2.5 seconds.

→ hands off: PAN-THROUGH — camera is drifting forward; H1-03 opens already drifting forward toward the mirror at the same rate.

H1-03 · 0:06–0:09.5 · 3.5s · FIRST FACE

VO: "and never once felt fixed."

Why: The gut-punch. She's just swallowed. The water glass comes down. And there's nothing. She holds her own eye contact in the mirror a beat too long — the look of someone doing a thing she no longer believes in.

IMAGE — GPT Image (softer on emotional face holds)

W1. L1 – master bathroom. Medium close-up of the woman shot into the vanity mirror, so we see her reflection while the back of her shoulder is soft in the near foreground. She has just swallowed; a glass of water is coming down from her mouth, held at chest height, her throat still settling. Her mouth is closed in a flat line, eyebrows slightly raised in the middle, eyes tired and a little glassy. She is looking at her own reflection, not the camera. Out-of-focus bottles crowd the bottom of the frame. 50mm, f/2.0, eye level, framed slightly off-centre with headroom above her. Flat cool overcast light from the window camera-left, a soft grey fill from the tile. GRADE-A: desaturated, flat, greenish shadows.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds nearly static with a faint handheld drift. She lowers the glass fully to the counter. Her eyes stay on her own reflection. She takes one shallow breath in and lets it out – her shoulders drop about two centimetres and do not come back up. She blinks once, slowly. No smile. She does not look at the camera at any point. 3.5 seconds.

→ hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — the sheer curtain lifts and passes a soft shadow across the mirror; cut inside the shadow into the dark kitchen.

H1-04 · 0:09.5–0:12.5 · 3s · TURN

VO: "The thing that finally worked was forgetting the entire bag"

Why: Hard tonal turn. Empty dark kitchen, the bag sitting alone. Nobody is in this shot — the absence is the story. Headlights sweeping the wall tell you she's already gone.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L2 – kitchen at 4am, unlit. On the warm oak butcher-block island sits a quilted grey canvas zip bag, bulging, half-unzipped with two supplement bottles visible inside. The rest of the kitchen is in near-darkness, white shaker cabinets reading as deep grey-blue. A hard slash of warm car-headlight glow rakes across the back wall and the upper cabinets. 35mm, f/2.8, low eye-level across the island so the bag sits large in the lower third against the dark room. GRADE-B: cold blue pre-dawn, crushed shadows, one warm sodium accent.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera locked off. The slash of headlight glow travels slowly across the back wall from right to left and fades out, leaving the room darker than it started. The bag does not move. Nothing else moves. 3 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the headlight sweep exits frame left; H1-05 opens with an aircraft strobe entering frame left at the same rhythm.

H1-05 · 0:12.5–0:15.5 · 3sVO: "on a trip"

Why: Two seconds of orientation. Shot from behind — we don't need her face, we need the geography and the hour. 4am airports look like nowhere on earth, which is exactly the isolation we want.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 — airport gate at 4am. The woman shot from behind at three-quarter rear, standing alone at a floor-to-ceiling glass wall, one hand on the handle of an upright carry-on. Her faint reflection is doubled in the glass. Beyond the glass: wet tarmac with orange sodium lights smeared across it and the nose of a parked aircraft. The gate seating behind her is completely empty. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level, she occupies the left third of the frame with the glass and tarmac filling the rest. GRADE-B: cold blue-grey, deep shadows, orange sodium accents.

MOTION (I2V)

Very slow 12cm push in toward her back. She shifts her weight from one foot to the other and her hand tightens once on the luggage handle. Outside the glass, a single red aircraft strobe pulses twice. Her reflection drifts slightly with the camera. She never turns around. 3 seconds.

→ hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack to the glass reflection until the frame is soft; open H1-06 on soft white tile and rack in.

H1-06 · 0:15.5–0:17.5 · 2s

VO: "and not taking a single one for five days."

Why: The negative-space shot. A guest bathroom counter with nothing on it. After ninety seconds of visual clutter, emptiness hits like a held breath. This is the single cheapest, highest-impact frame in the hook.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L6 – a small guest bathroom at her sister's house. Wide, almost bare white tile counter with a dated cream backsplash and a floral wallpaper border. On the entire counter there are exactly two objects: a single toothbrush lying flat on a folded washcloth, and a small unwrapped bar of soap. Vast empty counter space either side. 35mm, f/4, low eye-level across the counter surface so the emptiness dominates the lower two thirds. Soft warm-ish morning light from a frosted window camera-right. GRADE-B warming toward E – the first hint of warmth in the film.

MOTION (I2V)

Almost imperceptible slow drift right across the empty counter, revealing yet more bare surface. Nothing in the frame moves at all. Perfectly still. 2 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the round bar of soap sits centre-frame; H1-07 opens on the round face of the brass alarm clock at the same size and position.

H1-07 · 0:17.5–0:20 · 2.5s · HOOK PAYOFF

VO: "By day three, I slept through the night for the first time in two years."

Why: The promise, delivered as confusion rather than joy. She isn't happy yet — she's disoriented. Real people don't wake up grateful, they wake up going "wait, what time is it?" That's the beat that reads as true.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W2. L6 – sister's guest bedroom. The woman lying on her side in a patterned quilt, head on the pillow, just woken. Her eyes are open and unfocused, hair flattened on one side, a pillow crease on her cheek. She is looking across the bed toward a small brass alarm clock on the nightstand reading 7:04. Broad warm morning sun falls in a hard band across the quilt and the lower half of her face. Her expression is confusion, not happiness – brows slightly drawn, mouth relaxed and open a few millimetres. 50mm, f/2.0, camera low at mattress height. GRADE-E: warm returning daylight, gentle saturation, open shadows.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds at mattress height with the faintest handheld float. Her eyes refocus on the clock. She blinks twice, slowly. Her brow lifts very slightly as it registers. She does not smile, does not sit up, does not look at the camera. Dust motes drift through the band of sunlight. 2.5 seconds, real-time.

→ hands off into body: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack from her face to the sunlit dust until soft, then open S01 on the soft bathroom window and rack in. VO carries the transition.

HOUSE OF AYURVEDA - BATCH #173

Hook B (H2)

Three Days Off The Multivitamin (Story VSL)

0:00-0:20 - 6 shots - swap-test variant B

Document 3 of 5

Avatar Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware

Format Story VSL · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical · zero lip-sync

Stack Nano Banana Pro / GPT Image → image-to-video

Branch claude/ayurveda-batch-173-vsl-fb06lb

"I forgot my supplement bag on a five-day trip. By day three I slept through the night for the first time in two years, and I came home wondering which of my twenty-three bottles had been making me worse."

How this differs from Hook A: H1 opens on the stack and travels to the accident. H2 opens on the accident and travels back to the stack. So H2 must open on a body-language moment — the exact half-second of "oh no" — and end on the row of bottles as an open question. Same character, same wardrobe rules, same grades. Only the order of revelation changes.

Do not remix these two hooks. Run them as clean swaps against the identical body so the test reads clean.

H2-01 · 0:00–0:04 · 4s · COLD OPEN

VO: "I forgot my supplement bag"

Why: Open on the drop. A 4am airport, a hand going into a bag that doesn't contain the thing, and a face going still. Everyone knows that feeling in their body before they know it in words — which is why it stops a scroll faster than any object shot.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 – airport concourse at 4am, almost deserted. Medium shot of the woman stopped dead mid-stride, three-quarter front, her right hand pushed deep into an open tan crossbody bag against her hip, feeling for something. Her carry-on has rolled slightly past her and its handle is tilting. She is looking down and slightly to the left at nothing, mouth parted a few millimetres, brow tightening – the half-second before a realisation becomes a sentence. Cold overhead terminal fluorescents with a warm sodium spill from a distant lit newsstand behind her. Blurred empty concourse recedes deep behind. 50mm, f/2.0, eye level, she sits in the right third with the empty concourse open to her left. GRADE-B: cold blue-grey, deep shadows, one warm accent.

MOTION (I2V)

Slow 10cm push in. Her hand searches the bag twice more, then stops moving entirely. Her shoulders drop. Her eyes stay fixed on nothing. The carry-on handle finishes tipping and settles. A single blurred traveller crosses the deep background. She never looks at the camera. 4 seconds, real-time.

→ hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — a foreground blur passes camera-left as the traveller clears; cut inside it to the dark kitchen.

H2-02 · 0:04–0:07 · 3s

VO: "on a five-day trip."

Why: Answer the question the face just asked, in one cut: the bag is sitting at home on the counter, and the house is dark and empty. No dialogue needed. Same plate as H1-04 — reuse it, it's the strongest object shot in the film.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L2 – kitchen at 4am, unlit. On the warm oak butcher-block island sits a quilted grey canvas zip bag, bulging, half-unzipped with two supplement bottles visible inside. Beside it, a single set of house keys. The rest of the kitchen is in near-darkness. A hard slash of warm car-headlight glow rakes across the back wall. 35mm, f/2.8, low eye-level across the island so the bag sits large in the lower third. GRADE-B: cold blue pre-dawn, crushed shadows, one warm sodium accent.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera locked off. The slash of headlight glow travels slowly across the back wall right to left and fades out, leaving the room darker. The bag does not move. 3 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the round bottle cap visible inside the bag; H2-03 opens on the round alarm-clock face at the same size and position.

H2-03 · 0:07–0:11 · 4s · PAYOFF

VO: "By day three I slept through the night"

Why: Same disorientation beat as H1-07 and for the same reason — confusion sells, gratitude doesn't. Here it lands earlier in the hook, so hold it a half-second longer to let it register.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W2. L6 — sister's guest bedroom. The woman lying on her side in a patterned quilt, head on the pillow, just woken. Eyes open and unfocused, hair flattened on one side, pillow crease on her cheek. She is looking across the bed at a small brass alarm clock on the nightstand reading 7:04. A hard band of warm morning sun lies across the quilt and the lower half of her face. Expression is confusion, not happiness — brows slightly drawn, mouth relaxed and barely parted. 50mm, f/2.0, camera low at mattress height. GRADE-E: warm returning daylight, open shadows.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds at mattress height with the faintest handheld float. Her eyes refocus on the clock. She blinks twice, slowly, and her brow lifts very slightly. She pushes up onto one elbow about ten centimetres and stops there. No smile. Dust motes drift in the sunlight. 4 seconds, real-time.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — cut on the clock face to a phone screen in darkness at the same position. Hard tonal reversal, same geometry.

H2-04 · 0:11–0:14 · 3s · CONTRAST FLASH

VO: "for the first time in two years,"

Why: You can't feel "first time in two years" without seeing the two years. One flash-cut of 3:12am ceiling- staring, blue phone light on her face, does more than any line of VO. Shoot it colder and flatter than everything around it so it reads instantly as before.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W2. L3 – her own bedroom, deep night. Overhead shot from directly above the bed, looking straight down. The woman lies flat on her back on oatmeal linen, both eyes wide open, staring straight up past the camera, completely still. Her phone lies face-up on the duvet beside her hand, its screen the only light source, throwing a hard cold blue-white glow up across her chin, cheekbones and the underside of her brow, leaving her eye sockets in shadow. The rest of the room is near-black. The phone screen reads 3:12. 35mm, f/2.8, directly overhead. Very cold, very flat, crushed blacks.

MOTION (I2V)

Locked-off overhead, absolutely no camera move. She does not move at all except for one slow blink at the very end. The phone screen dims by one brightness step halfway through. Utter stillness – the shot should feel airless. 3 seconds.

→ hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — the phone glow blooms out to soft white; open H2-05 on a soft overexposed doorway and rack in.

H2-05 · 0:14–0:17 · 3s

VO: "and I came home wondering"

Why: She's home, coat still on, suitcase still in hand, standing in the bathroom doorway looking at the counter. Nobody unpacks first. That detail is what makes it read as a real memory instead of a staged scene.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L1 – master bathroom, seen from behind her through the doorway. The woman stands in the doorway in her navy quilted vest, still holding the upright handle of her carry-on with one hand, shot from behind and slightly to one side so we see the back of her head and her shoulder line. Framed by the dark doorjamb, the bright bathroom beyond, and on the counter the long row of supplement bottles catching the window light. She is completely motionless, looking at the counter. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level, deep frame-within-a-frame composition. GRADE-A returning: flat, cool, desaturated.

MOTION (I2V)

Very slow 15cm push forward through the doorway, past her shoulder, so the counter of bottles grows in the frame while she stays fixed at the edge. She does not move except for her hand releasing the luggage handle, which tips slowly. She never turns toward the camera. 3 seconds.

→ hands off: PAN-THROUGH — the camera is already pushing forward; H2-06 opens continuing that same push along the counter at the same rate. Should read as one unbroken move.

H2-06 · 0:17–0:20 · 3s · OPEN LOOP

VO: "which of my twenty-three bottles had been making me worse."

Why: End the hook on an unanswered question with her out-of-focus behind the evidence. The bottles are sharp, she is soft — the objects are in charge of her life, and the frame says so. Do not resolve this shot; the unresolved rack is the retention device.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W3. L1 – master bathroom. Low camera at counter height, looking straight down the long row of twenty-plus supplement bottles receding into the frame, labels facing every direction, one tipped on its side. The nearest three bottles are razor sharp. Deep behind them and completely out of focus, the woman stands at the far end of the counter, an unreadable soft shape with her arms folded. Flat cool window light camera-left. 50mm, f/1.8, focus locked on the nearest bottle. GRADE-A: desaturated, greenish-grey shadows, low contrast.

MOTION (I2V)

Slow continuous 12cm dolly forward along the row of bottles. Halfway through, the focus begins to rack off the bottles toward her blurred figure but stops before it resolves – she never comes fully sharp. She shifts her weight once in the blur. 3 seconds.

→ hands off into body: PAN-THROUGH — S01 opens on the same counter, wide, camera still drifting. The body picks up mid-move.

HOUSE OF AYURVEDA - BATCH #173

Body Part 1

Three Days Off The Multivitamin (Story VSL)

0:20-3:00 - S01-S43 - stack, accident, labels

Document 4 of 5

Avatar Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware

Format Story VSL · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical · zero lip-sync

Stack Nano Banana Pro / GPT Image → image-to-video

Branch claude/ayurveda-batch-173-vsl-fb06lb

Shared VSL body. Runs identically behind Hook A or Hook B. Assumes `GLOBAL_PREFIX` + `GLOBAL_SUFFIX` + `NEG` from the bible on every prompt.

BLOCK 2 — THE PROBLEM (the stack) · 0:20–1:15 · S01–S14

Block intent: build the graveyard by accumulation, then turn it from funny to sad in one shot (`S09`), then make it cost a marriage a little (`S12` - `S14`). Cut fast — 2-3s — so the bottles pile up on the viewer the way they piled up on her. Then stop dead at `S14` .

Grade for the whole block: GRADE-A. Flat, cool, desaturated, lifted blacks. Nothing warm until 1:45.

S01 · 0:20–0:25 · 5s

VO: "My bathroom counter had twenty-three bottles on it."

Why: The establishing wide. Give it a full five seconds — this is the shot the viewer measures their own bathroom against. Static and unflinching, like evidence.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L1 – master bathroom. Wide static shot, straight on to the vanity. The entire cream quartz counter is covered with twenty-three supplement bottles of wildly mismatched sizes and colours – white HDPE bottles, two amber glass, a squat blue tub, one enormous cream powder tub, three small brown dropper bottles – crowded in an uneven double row, plus a weekly pill organiser and a glass of water. The woman stands at the far right of frame in her cream cardigan, one hand resting on the counter edge, looking down at them. Warm oak vanity, greige tile, chrome faucet, sheer curtain at a small window camera-left. 35mm, f/4, eye level. Flat cool overcast daylight from camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V)

Locked-off wide, no camera move beyond the faintest handheld breath. She stands still, then lifts one hand and straightens a single bottle by two centimetres – a small pointless tidying gesture – and lowers her hand again. Nothing else moves. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: `FOCUS-HANDOFF` — rack from the wide to macro blur on S02.

S02 · 0:25–0:27 · 2sVO: "The B-complex,"IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.8. Extreme close-up of a white supplement bottle label filling the frame at a slight angle, printed text clearly legible: "B-COMPLEX 100" in bold above smaller text "HIGH POTENCY · 90 VEGETARIAN CAPSULES". Slight glare across the laminate, one thumbprint smudge. Cream quartz counter, other bottles thrown to soft blur behind. Flat cool window light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Tiny 4cm drift right across the label. Nothing else moves. 2 seconds. → hands off: PAN-THROUGH — drift continues right into S03.

S03 · 0:27–0:30 · 3sVO: "the magnesium I'd switched to glycinate,"

Why: Two magnesium bottles, one shoved aside. "Switched to" is the whole story of her spending — she never stopped buying, she just kept upgrading. Show the abandoned one.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.5. Two magnesium bottles side by side on cream quartz. In sharp focus, a newer white bottle reading "MAGNESIUM GLYCINATE 400mg". Behind and shoved sideways at an angle, an older bottle with a faded label reading "MAGNESIUM 500mg", its cap dusty and slightly off. A thin layer of dust visible on the older bottle's shoulder. Flat cool light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Slow 6cm drift right, focus racking gently from the new bottle back to the shoved-aside old one. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — round white cap → round golden capsule.

S04 · 0:30–0:32 · 2sVO: "the turmeric with black pepper,"IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.8, overhead. Four mustard-yellow turmeric capsules spilled on cream quartz beside an open bottle lying on its side, one capsule slightly leaking fine orange powder that has stained the counter. A faint orange smear where a thumb wiped at it. Flat cool light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Locked off. One capsule rolls 3cm and stops against another. No other movement. 2 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — cut on a shadow crossing frame into the fridge-door light of S05.

S05 · 0:32–0:35 · 3s

VO: "the probiotic in the fridge,"

Why: Location break. The fridge shot proves the stack has colonised the whole house, not just one counter. The cold blue fridge light is also a welcome tonal break in a flat grey block.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L2 – kitchen. The refrigerator door open, the woman's hand and forearm reaching into the door shelf, taking hold of a small amber probiotic bottle wedged between a yogurt tub and a milk carton. Her face is out of frame – only arm, hand, and cardigan sleeve. Hard cold blue-white fridge light throws everything else in the dark kitchen into shadow. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level, framed so the lit fridge interior is a bright rectangle in a dark frame. GRADE-A with a cold fridge-light key.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. Her fingers close on the probiotic bottle and lift it out of the door shelf, out of the top of frame. The milk carton rocks once and settles. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the bottle exits top of frame; S06 opens with a bottle entering frame.

S06 · 0:35–0:37 · 2s

VO: "the fish oil,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.2. A wide-mouth bottle of amber fish-oil softgels, cap off, tipped toward camera so we look down into the mass of glossy amber capsules packed inside. Light catches their surfaces in dozens of small highlights. On the counter beside it, two loose softgels. Flat cool light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Slow 5cm push toward the open mouth of the bottle. The highlights on the softgels shift with the move. 2 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack out on the amber gloss, open on soft paper.

S07 · 0:37–0:41 · 4s

VO: "the methylated folate for my MTHFR variant,"

Why: This is the credibility shot for the type of person she is — someone who got a genetic test and built a protocol around it. The highlighter on a real-looking report says "I did my homework" better than any line.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W4. L4 – desk nook. Overhead close shot of a printed genetic-test report on the desk, the page headed "METHYLATION PANEL" with a table of rows; one row is highlighted in yellow marker reading "MTHFR C677T – HETEROZYGOUS". The page is dog-eared and has been folded in thirds. A supplement bottle labelled "METHYLFOLATE 1000mcg" sits on the corner of the paper. Her hand rests at the edge of the page, one finger on the highlighted row. 50mm, f/2.8, overhead, slightly angled. Warm desk-lamp pool in an otherwise cool room. GRADE-A with a warm task-light accent.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds overhead. Her fingertip traces slowly along the highlighted row from left to right and stops. Nothing else moves. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — finger drags left-to-right; S08 opens with a scoop dragging left-to-right through powder.

S08 · 0:41–0:45 · 4s

VO: "a collagen tub the size of a paint can,"

Why: The one moment of dry humour in the block. Play the scale absolutely straight — shoot it like a product photo of an industrial container. The joke is that it's real.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L2 – kitchen. Low three-quarter angle across the butcher-block island, hero-lit like a product shot but in flat daylight: an enormous cream-and-gold collagen powder tub, easily 30cm tall, dwarfing the two normal-sized supplement bottles beside it. The lid is off and resting against it, a large plastic scoop buried in the fine off-white powder inside. A dusting of spilled powder on the wood. The woman's hand rests on the rim of the tub for scale. 35mm, f/2.8, low angle so the tub reads as monumental. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 8cm rise on the camera, making the tub loom slightly. Her hand lifts off the rim and drops out of frame. A little powder dust hangs in the light. 4 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — she passes the window; cut inside the shadow.

S09 · 0:45–0:51 · 6s · ♦ LOAD-BEARING SHOT

VO: "the ashwagandha I started after my mother died."

Why: This is the shot that turns the film from a list into a story. Everything before it is inventory; this makes the inventory grief. Do not cut fast. Hold six full seconds and let the music drop out underneath it. The framed photo does all the work — she never has to emote.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom, but this shot is on the shelf beside the mirror, not the counter. Close shot: a small brown supplement bottle labelled "ASHWAGANDHA" standing directly beside a modest wooden picture frame holding a slightly faded photograph of an older woman in her seventies, smiling on a porch. The frame glass has a few fingerprints near its lower edge, as though it is picked up often. Deep behind, thrown far out of focus, the woman stands looking at it, her expression unreadable and still. 85mm, f/2.0, focus locked on the frame and the bottle. Flat cool window light camera-left, a soft grey fill. GRADE-A, slightly cooler and more desaturated than surrounding shots.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds almost perfectly still, only the faintest handheld breath. Nothing in the frame moves for the first four seconds. Then, deep in the blurred background, she lifts one hand toward her face and lowers it. The focus never leaves the photo frame. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — hold the stillness, then cut hard on a rustle of paper into S10. This is the one place a slightly abrupt cut is correct: it's her changing the subject.

S10 · 0:51–0:56 · 5s

VO: "Added up across the year, it was more than four thousand dollars."

Why: Financial proof without a price on screen. Highlighted recurring charges on real-looking statements is the "oh god" beat. Do not render a total figure — let the VO own the number, the picture owns the dread.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W4. L2 – kitchen table. Overhead shot of a fan of six or seven printed credit-card statements spread across the table, dozens of line items, many highlighted in yellow – the highlighted rows are all clearly repeat supplement-shop charges. A cheap calculator sits on top of the pile with a number on its display, partially obscured by her hand. Two more statements have been pushed off to the side. Her forearms frame the bottom of the shot. 50mm, f/2.8, overhead. Cool overcast daylight from a window camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds overhead. Her hand slides one statement out of the fan and lays it on top, then her fingers stop and rest flat on the page. She does not pick anything up. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the rectangle of paper → the rectangle of the bathroom mirror.

S11 · 0:56–1:00 · 4s

VO: "Eight years of religious morning swallowing."

Why: One shot that says "every single morning." Ghosted multiple-exposure of her at the same spot — done subtly, this reads as time passing, not as a gimmick. Keep it at 3–4 ghosts maximum or it turns into a music video.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L1 – master bathroom. The woman standing at the counter in her usual position, shot straight on. Rendered as a subtle in-camera long-exposure multiple exposure: three faint overlapping ghosts of the same woman in slightly different phases of the same routine – reaching for a bottle, tipping pills, raising the glass – layered over one solid sharper version of her at the centre. The counter, bottles and room stay perfectly sharp and solid. Restrained and photographic, not a graphic effect. 35mm, f/4, eye level. Flat cool window light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Camera perfectly locked off. The ghosted layers drift and dissolve slowly into one another while the room stays rock solid. The central figure remains the most solid throughout. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the solid central figure resolves; S12 opens on her in the same position, same size.

S12 · 1:00–1:06 · 6s

VO: "My husband used to gently ask if I'd ever tried not taking one of them for a while."

Why: He's in the doorway behind her, in the mirror. He is careful — hand on the jamb, not entering. Body language does the whole "gently." She doesn't turn around. Two people in one frame, no eye contact between them.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom. Medium shot into the vanity mirror. In the mirror we see the woman in the foreground at the counter, mid-routine, glass in hand, not looking up – and behind her, framed in the open doorway, her husband: a man of similar age, grey at the temples, in a plain navy t-shirt, one hand resting on the doorjamb, standing at the threshold and not stepping in. His expression is careful and kind, mouth slightly open as if he has just finished a sentence. She has not turned around. 50mm, f/2.5, eye level. Flat cool window light camera-left, the hallway behind him darker. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds with a faint handheld drift. He shifts his weight at the doorway and his hand slides a few centimetres down the jamb. She continues her routine without pausing and without looking up at him in the mirror. Neither one looks at the camera. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — she reaches for the cabinet; S13 opens on the cabinet door already moving.

S13 · 1:06–1:10 · 4s

VO: "I told him he didn't understand the stack."

Why: Defensiveness played physically, not facially. She closes the cabinet a little too firmly and keeps her eyes down. That's how people who know they're wrong actually behave.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom. Tighter medium shot from the side, three-quarter profile. The woman is pushing the mirrored cabinet door closed with the flat of her hand, jaw set, eyes down and to the side, not looking at the mirror or at the doorway behind her. Her other hand grips the counter edge. In the reflection of the closing cabinet door, the husband's figure sweeps past as the mirror turns. 50mm, f/2.0, eye level, tight. Flat cool light camera-left. GRADE-A, contrast very slightly raised.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. She pushes the cabinet door shut in one firm movement; the reflection sweeps across the glass as it closes. She keeps her eyes down and does not look up. Her jaw tightens once. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the door completes its swing; S14 opens on the settled, still room.

S14 · 1:10–1:15 · 5s · ♦ LOAD-BEARING SHOT

VO: "He stopped asking."

Why: The best shot in the first half. Identical framing to S12 — but the doorway is empty. Same room, same light, one person gone. Let the music drop to nothing here. This is the shot that makes a 55-year-old woman text this ad to her sister.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom. EXACTLY the same framing, lens, height and lighting as S12 – medium shot into the vanity mirror. The woman is at the counter, glass in hand, alone. The doorway behind her in the mirror is now completely empty; the hallway beyond it is dark. She has stopped mid-routine and is looking into the mirror at the empty doorway behind her own reflection. Her expression is flat and absent, not sad exactly – used to it. 50mm, f/2.5, eye level. Flat cool window light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds absolutely still. She does not move for three full seconds, still looking at the empty doorway in the mirror. Then she lowers her eyes, and resumes the routine – she raises the glass and drinks. Nothing else in the room moves at all. She never looks at the camera. 5 seconds.

→ hands off into Block 3: LIGHT-WIPE — hold two beats of near-silence after the VO, then a headlight sweep crosses the mirror and we cut into the airport block. The silence is the transition.

BLOCK 3 — THE ACCIDENT (re-hook) · 1:15–2:00 · S15–S28

Block intent: re-hook at the 25% drop-off point. Energy lifts, cutting gets faster, and — critically — she never chooses to stop taking the supplements. It happens to her. That's what lets the viewer off the hook for their own eight years.

Grade: GRADE-B (cold blue 4am) → warming toward GRADE-E at the sister's house from S28.

S15 · 1:15–1:18 · 3s

VO: "Last May I flew to my sister's for her son's graduation."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L2 – kitchen. Close shot of a graduation invitation card held to the fridge door by two magnets, printed in navy and gold, legible: "PLEASE JOIN US – CLASS OF 2025 GRADUATION". Around it, a grocery list in ballpoint and a faded strip of family photos. Warm brushed-steel fridge surface. 50mm, f/2.2, slight angle, eye level. Soft cool daylight from the kitchen window camera-right. GRADE-A about to turn.

MOTION (I2V) Slow 6cm push toward the invitation. The card lifts a millimetre at its lower corner as air moves. Nothing else. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — rectangle of card → rectangle of a folded shirt.

S16 · 1:18–1:20 · 2s

VO: "Five days."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L3 – her bedroom. Overhead close shot into an open carry-on suitcase on the bed. Inside, exactly five neatly folded outfits stacked in a row, a zipped toiletry pouch, and a pair of white sneakers tucked at the end. Her hands are pressing the stack down flat. Oatmeal linen bedding around the case. 35mm, f/2.8, overhead. Flat cool daylight. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds overhead. Both her hands press the folded stack down twice, firmly, then withdraw out of frame. 2 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — hands withdraw; S17 opens with a hand pushing into a bag.

S17 · 1:20–1:25 · 5s

VO: "At 4am at the airport I realized I'd left the entire supplement bag"

Why: The realisation, played on the body. If you're running Hook B, shoot this as a tighter, different angle than H2-01 so it doesn't read as a repeat — go to the hands and the shoulders, skip the wide.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 — airport concourse, 4am, deserted. Medium-tight shot from a low three-quarter angle. The woman stopped mid-stride, her hand pushed deep into an open tan crossbody bag, feeling around. Her carry-on has rolled slightly ahead of her. She is looking down and away, mouth just parted, brow tightening. Cold overhead fluorescents, a warm sodium spill from a distant lit newsstand. Empty concourse blurred deep behind her. 50mm, f/2.0, slightly below eye level. GRADE-B: cold blue-grey, deep shadows.

MOTION (I2V)

Slow 10cm push in. Her hand searches the bag twice more and then goes completely still. Her shoulders drop. She closes her eyes for one full beat and opens them. The carry-on handle tips and settles. She never looks at the camera. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — a blurred traveller crosses foreground; cut inside the blur.

S18 · 1:25–1:27 · 2s

VO: "on my kitchen counter."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L2 — kitchen at 4am, unlit. The quilted grey canvas supplement bag sits alone on the butcher-block island, half-unzipped, bottles visible inside. Deep darkness all around, white cabinets reading grey-blue. One thin band of streetlight through the window falls across the bag itself. 35mm, f/2.8, low eye-level across the island. GRADE-B.

MOTION (I2V) Locked off. Absolutely nothing moves. The band of streetlight is perfectly still. Dead air. 2 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the lit band across the bag → a lit band across her face in S19.

S19 · 1:27–1:30 · 3s

VO: "I almost turned around."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 – airport. Close shot of the woman from behind and slightly to the side, her head turned back over her shoulder, looking down the concourse toward the distant exit signs. We see three-quarters of her face in profile, lit on one side by a hard cold fluorescent band. Her hand still on the luggage handle. Real indecision – the head is turned but the feet have not moved. 85mm, f/2.0, just behind her shoulder. GRADE-B.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds tight behind her shoulder with a faint float. She holds the look back for two seconds, then turns her head slowly forward again. Her hand stays on the handle. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — head turns forward; S20 opens on her already seated, facing forward.

S20 · 1:30–1:34 · 4s

VO: "I knew what happened to my body when I missed even one morning."

Why: Anticipatory dread, played as a physical gesture: the flat hand pressed to the sternum. Universally readable, never cheesy, and it costs nothing.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 – airport gate seating, empty rows either side of her. The woman sitting alone, leaning slightly forward, elbows on knees, the flat of one hand pressed against her sternum. She is looking at the floor. Her bag is on the seat beside her. Rows of empty blue seats recede behind. Cold overhead fluorescents from directly above, casting shadow into her eye sockets. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level from across the aisle. GRADE-B.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds from across the aisle with a slow handheld float. She takes one deliberate deep breath – her shoulders rise and fall – and her hand presses a little harder against her chest. She keeps looking at the floor. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — cut on the overhead light bar to the lit departures board.

S21 · 1:34–1:36 · 2s

VO: "The plane was boarding."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people in focus. L5 – airport gate. Low-angle shot of an overhead departures monitor, the screen legible: a flight row with the status "BOARDING" in amber. Beneath it, out of focus, the shapes of a queue forming and a gate agent's arm scanning. Cold fluorescent light with amber screen spill. 50mm, f/2.0, focus on the screen. GRADE-B with amber accents.

MOTION (I2V) Locked off. The BOARDING text on the screen blinks once. Blurred figures shuffle forward in the lower frame. 2 seconds. → hands off: PAN-THROUGH — the queue moves right; S22 opens with her walking right.

S22 · 1:36–1:41 · 5s

VO: "I told myself I'd buy replacements at the airport, and I didn't."

Why: One of the best shots in the film and almost nobody would think of it: she walks past a lit airport shop wall of vitamins without stopping. The choice is shown by the not-stopping. Track with her so the shelf slides by behind her and out of frame — the temptation physically leaves.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L5 – airport newsstand at 4am. Tracking medium shot from the side as the woman walks right to left past the open shopfront, carry-on in tow. Behind her, brightly lit under retail LEDs, a full shelf wall of travel-sized vitamins, multivitamin bottles and electrolyte sachets – the only saturated colour in the frame. She is looking straight ahead down the concourse, not at the shelf. Her face is calm, almost blank. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level, she stays centre-frame while the shelf slides behind her. GRADE-B, with the retail shelf noticeably brighter and warmer than everything around it.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera tracks smoothly sideways with her at walking pace, keeping her centred while the lit vitamin shelf slides across the background right to left and out of frame behind her. She walks at a steady pace and does not turn her head or slow down. Her eyes stay forward. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: PAN-THROUGH — the lateral move continues into S23, which opens still drifting sideways.

S23 · 1:41–1:43 · 2s

VO: "Day one, nothing."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3. L6 – sister's guest room. The woman sitting on the edge of the guest bed, still in her travel clothes, shoes on, suitcase unopened on the floor. She is just sitting, hands in her lap, looking at nothing. Dated floral wallpaper border, patterned quilt. Flat late-afternoon light through a half-closed blind, striping the wall. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level from the doorway. GRADE-B, very slightly warmer than the airport.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds from the doorway. She sits completely still, then blinks and looks down at her own hands. Nothing else moves. 2 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — cut on the round bedside lamp base to the round clock face.

S24 · 1:43–1:46 · 3s

VO: "Day three, I woke up at 7am."

Why: If you ran Hook A or B, the viewer has already seen the 7:04 clock. Good — this is the payoff of a plant. But change the angle: go tight on the clock alone first, then her. Repetition with variation is what makes a VSL feel authored.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people in focus. L6 – sister's guest room. Macro close-up of a small brass alarm clock on a wooden nightstand, its face legible at 7:04. A hard band of warm morning sun falls diagonally across the clock face and the wood grain. Deep behind and completely out of focus, the shape of the woman under a patterned quilt. 100mm macro, f/2.0, focus locked on the clock. GRADE-E: warm morning daylight, open shadows, gentle saturation.

MOTION (I2V) Slow 5cm push toward the clock. The second hand sweeps. Behind, in soft blur, the quilt shifts as she stirs. Focus stays on the clock. 3 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack from the clock back to her, then cut.

S25 · 1:46–1:48 · 2s

VO: "I'd gone to bed at 11."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L6 – sister's guest room at night. The identical brass alarm clock in the identical framing as the previous shot, but at night and reading 11:02. A bedside lamp is being switched off – the frame is half-lit warm and half in darkness. A paperback lies face down beside the clock. 100mm macro, f/2.0. Warm tungsten falling to black. GRADE-D warmth, low key.

MOTION (I2V) Locked-off, identical framing to the previous clock shot. The lamp light goes out during the shot and the frame drops to near-darkness, the clock face just readable. 2 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — identical clock framing, day/night flip. The match itself is the edit.

S26 · 1:48–1:51 · 3s

VO: "I had slept the whole night."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W2. L6 – sister's guest room. The woman sitting up in bed, one hand flat on the quilt beside her, hair slept-on, pillow crease on her cheek. She is looking down at her own hand, not at anything. Her expression is bewildered, not happy – eyebrows slightly raised, mouth closed. Broad warm morning sun across the bed and the wall behind her. 50mm, f/2.0, camera at mattress height. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds at mattress height. She looks down at her hand, then slowly lifts her eyes and looks toward the window. She takes one full breath. She does not smile. 3 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — the warm sun blooms out to white; cut hard into the cold black of S27.

S27 · 1:51–1:56 · 5s · CONTRAST

VO: "I'd been falling asleep at midnight and waking at 3am for two straight years."

Why: The airless overhead insomnia shot. Coldest, flattest, stillest frame in the entire film — it should feel like the temperature drops. Five seconds of nothing moving is a long time; that's the point.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W2. L3 — her own bedroom, deep night. Overhead shot from directly above the bed, straight down. The woman flat on her back on oatmeal linen, both eyes wide open, staring straight up past the camera, absolutely still. Her phone lies face-up on the duvet beside her hand, its screen the only light, throwing hard cold blue-white up onto her chin, cheekbones and brow and leaving her eye sockets in shadow. The screen reads 3:12. The rest of the room is near-black. 35mm, f/2.8, directly overhead. Very cold, very flat, crushed blacks.

MOTION (I2V) Locked-off overhead, no camera move whatsoever. She does not move at all except for one slow blink at second three. The phone screen dims one step. Airless stillness. 5 seconds. → hands off:

LIGHT-WIPE — the phone screen times out to black; hold black for 6 frames; open S28 in warm daylight. The black gap is the time-jump.

S28 · 1:56–2:00 · 4s

VO: "Day five my sister said, 'I don't want to tell you what to do, but you look better than you have in three years.'"

Why: First external validation and the first genuine warmth in the film's grade. Play it as two women at a kitchen table mid-conversation — the sister looking at her a beat too long is the whole line.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W3 (vest off, sage tee only). L6 – sister's kitchen. Two-shot across a small kitchen table, morning. The woman sits with a coffee mug in both hands. Across from her, her sister – a similar-aged woman with darker hair, in a robe – has stopped mid-motion, mug halfway down, and is openly studying her face. Warm morning sun through a window behind them, dated oak cabinets, a fruit bowl. The woman is registering the compliment and slightly deflecting, eyes dropping to her mug. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level from the end of the table so both are in frame. GRADE-E: warm, open, gently saturated – noticeably warmer than anything before it.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds at the end of the table with a soft handheld float. The sister sets her mug down and keeps looking at her. The woman glances up, meets her eyes for a beat, then looks back down into her own mug and lifts one shoulder in a small dismissive shrug. Neither smiles broadly. Neither looks at the camera. 4 seconds.

→ hands off into Block 4: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack to the window light behind them until white, then open S29 on a cool doorway. Warmth out, cold back in — she's home.

BLOCK 4 — THE LABELS + INVALIDATION · 2:00–2:50 · S29–S43

Block intent: the mechanism block. This is where a solution-aware viewer gets the specific, checkable reason their current solution failed. Everything here must look like evidence: hard task light, macro text, documents, shallow focus. Cutting tightens to 2–4s. She has her glasses on for this entire block — that's the visual signal she has switched from believer to investigator.

Grade: GRADE-C. One warm pool of task light, room falling to black, contrast up.

S29 · 2:00–2:04 · 4s

VO: "I flew home and Monday morning I stood at my counter"

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom, seen from the hallway. The woman standing in the bathroom doorway, arms folded, shot from behind and to one side so we read her posture and the back of her head. Beyond her, the counter and its row of bottles in cool window light. She is completely still. The hallway around the camera is dark, framing the bright doorway. 35mm, f/2.8, eye level, strong frame-within-a-frame. GRADE-A returning to flat and cool.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 12cm push forward through the dark hallway toward the lit doorway. She does not move at all. The bottles grow slightly in frame. 4 seconds. → hands off: PAN-THROUGH — the push continues into S30 at the same rate.

S30 · 2:04–2:08 · 4s

VO: "and asked which of those twenty-three bottles had been making me worse."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W1. L1 – master bathroom. Low camera at counter height, looking straight down the long row of supplement bottles receding into frame. The nearest bottles razor sharp, labels facing every direction. Deep behind and fully out of focus, the woman stands with her arms folded. 50mm, f/1.8, focus locked on the nearest bottle. Flat cool window light camera-left. GRADE-A.

MOTION (I2V) Slow continuous 12cm dolly along the row. Focus begins to rack toward her blurred figure and stops before resolving – she never comes sharp. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — a hand enters frame and takes the nearest bottle.

S31 · 2:08–2:11 · 3s · TONE SHIFT

VO: "So I started reading labels."

Why: The glasses coming down onto her face is the single gesture that flips the film from victim to investigator. Shoot it tight and let it be the whole shot.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 – master bathroom. Tight close-up, three-quarter profile. The woman is pulling her tortoiseshell reading glasses down from the top of her head onto her nose with one hand, while the other hand holds a supplement bottle up at chest height. Her eyes are already dropping toward the label. Focused, slightly hard expression – no softness. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level. The flat window light is now joined by a warmer, harder task light from camera-right. GRADE-C beginning: contrast rising, one warm key.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds tight. She pulls the glasses down onto her nose in one movement and settles them with a small push at the bridge. Her eyes drop to the label in her other hand and lock there. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her eyeline drops; S32 opens on what she's looking at.

S32 · 2:11–2:16 · 5s · ♦ THE MECHANISM

VO: "My multivitamin used magnesium oxide,"

Why: The shot that makes people pause the ad and go check their own bottle. The text must be perfectly legible. Nano Banana Pro renders this reliably — spell the string exactly and generate 4 variants until the panel is clean. Do not let this be soft or stylised.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/3.5. Extreme close-up of a Supplement Facts panel on the back of a white multivitamin bottle, filling the frame, shot dead flat so the text is fully sharp edge to edge. The panel is legible with clear black text on white: a "Supplement Facts" header, a rule, and rows including "Vitamin D3 25mcg", then a clearly readable row "Magnesium (as Magnesium Oxide) 250mg", then "Zinc (as Zinc Oxide) 15mg". The magnesium row sits in the centre of frame. Slight curvature of the bottle at the frame edges, a faint laminate glare in one corner, one small thumbprint. Hard warm task light from camera-right raking across, deep shadow at the frame edge. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V)

Extremely slow 4cm push toward the "Magnesium (as Magnesium Oxide)" row, which stays perfectly sharp and legible for the entire shot. The bottle is held steady in an unseen hand with the faintest human tremor. No focus change. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the bottle begins to rotate; S33 opens continuing the rotation.

S33 · 2:16–2:19 · 3s

VO: "the cheap alkaline form."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W4. 100mm macro, f/2.5. Close on her hand rotating the multivitamin bottle slowly, her thumb dragging across the printed label as she turns it. Focus on her thumb and the label edge. Her face is out of frame. Chipped neutral nail polish, one gold wedding band, dry skin at the knuckle. Hard warm task light from camera-right, dark background. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds macro. Her thumb drags slowly across the label from left to right, rotating the bottle about 40 degrees. The movement is slow and deliberate. 3 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — rotation completes; S34 opens with the bottle being set down.

S34 · 2:19–2:22 · 3s

VO: "I knew it absorbed poorly."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 – master bathroom. Medium close-up, three-quarter. The woman lowering the bottle to the counter, glasses on, eyes still on it as she sets it down. Her jaw is tight and her mouth is a hard flat line. Not surprised yet – irritated. 50mm, f/2.0, eye level. Hard warm task light from camera-right, the rest of the room falling into shadow. GRADE-C: high contrast, warm key, cool ambient.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. She sets the bottle down on the counter with a small deliberate press, and her fingers stay on the cap for a beat before releasing. Her jaw tightens. She does not look up. 3 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — she passes the task lamp; cut inside the shadow into the night desk.

S35 · 2:22–2:28 · 6s

VO: "What I didn't know is your kidneys actively work to flush it,"

Why: The research beat. Late night, one lamp, glasses reflecting the screen. This is where "she found out something you don't know" gets established. Keep the on-screen text generic — a study abstract, not a brand.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W4. L4 – desk nook, late night, room otherwise dark. Medium close-up from the side and slightly behind, so we see her face in three-quarter and the laptop screen glow on it. The screen shows a plain academic journal abstract page – dense grey body text, one line highlighted. Her reading glasses catch the screen as two small rectangles of light. Her finger is on the trackpad. A green desk lamp is the only other light. 50mm, f/2.0, eye level. GRADE-C: single warm key, deep black surround, cool screen fill.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds with a faint handheld float. She scrolls the page slowly with two fingers on the trackpad; the text on screen moves upward. She stops scrolling abruptly and leans about five centimetres closer to the screen. Her eyes narrow. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — she leans in; S36 opens on the document she leans toward.

S36 · 2:28–2:33 · 5s · ◆ PROOF SHOT

VO: "so you can test low for magnesium even while you take it every day."

Why: The most persuasive single frame in the invalidation block. A blood panel flagged LOW sitting next to the bottle she's been taking daily. Two objects, one contradiction, zero explanation needed.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L4 – desk. Overhead close shot of a printed blood-test result sheet on the desk, a clean clinical table of rows. One row is clearly legible and flagged: "Magnesium, Serum – 1.6 mg/dL – LOW" with the word "LOW" in bold beside a reference range. Lying directly on top of the paper, at the edge of frame, is the same white multivitamin bottle from earlier, its "Magnesium (as Magnesium Oxide)" label edge just readable. Warm desk-lamp pool falling off to darkness at the frame edges. 50mm, f/2.8, overhead. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 6cm push toward the flagged "LOW" row. The paper lifts a millimetre at one corner. No hands enter the frame. The text stays perfectly sharp and legible throughout. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the white bottle at frame edge → the same bottle held over the bin.

S37 · 2:33–2:38 · 5s

VO: "I'd been taking the exact form my body was built to throw away, for eight years,"

Why: She holds the bottle over the trash can — and doesn't let go. The hesitation is the emotion. Eight years of belief doesn't drop out of your hand in one second.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 — master bathroom. Medium shot from the side. The woman standing with her arm extended, holding the white multivitamin bottle out over an open stainless bin, hand suspended. She has not let go. She is looking at the bottle, glasses on, mouth slightly open. The bin is dark and open beneath her hand. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level from her side. Hard warm task light from camera-right, deep shadow beneath. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds from her side. Her hand stays suspended over the bin for three full seconds without releasing. Her fingers tighten slightly instead of opening. Then she draws the bottle back toward her chest. She does not drop it. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the bottle comes back toward her; S38 opens on a document at chest height.

S38 · 2:38–2:42 · 4s

VO: "while my naturopath kept raising the dose."

Why: The escalating dose card is a quietly devastating prop. Crossed-out numbers going up show a professional doubling down on a failing input — the viewer's whole experience of their own protocol, in one piece of paper.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.8. Close on a small handwritten practitioner dosage card lying on the counter, blue ballpoint on a printed clinic notecard. A dosage line has been revised three times, each earlier figure struck through: "200mg" crossed out, "400mg" crossed out, "600mg daily" circled. The handwriting is a real clinician's quick scrawl, slightly different pen pressure on each revision. A paperclip mark dents one corner. Hard warm task light raking from camera-right. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 5cm drift down the card past the crossed-out figures to the circled "600mg daily". The handwriting stays perfectly sharp and legible. No hands. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — a forearm sweeps into frame.

S39 · 2:42–2:45 · 3s

VO: "That was the thread that unraveled the whole stack."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 – master bathroom. Overhead wide of the counter. Both her forearms sweep in from the bottom of frame, gathering a dozen supplement bottles toward her in one movement. Bottles tip and knock against each other. Her face is not in frame – only forearms, cardigan sleeves pushed to the elbow, and the chaos of bottles. 35mm, f/4, directly overhead. Hard warm task light from camera-right, high contrast. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Locked-off overhead. Both forearms sweep in decisively from the bottom of frame and drag a cluster of bottles toward the camera. Several bottles tip over and roll. The movement is fast and committed, not gentle. 3 seconds. → hands off: WHIP-BY — a bottle tumbles across the lens; cut at maximum blur.

S40 · 2:45–2:47 · 2s

VO: "The B-vitamins were synthetic."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/3.5. Extreme close-up of an ingredient line on a supplement label, dead flat and perfectly legible: "Vitamin B12 (as Cyanocobalamin) 1000mcg". The word "Cyanocobalamin" sits centre-frame. Slight laminate glare at one edge. Hard warm task light raking from camera-right. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Locked off with the faintest hand tremor on the held bottle. No camera move. The text stays sharp and legible. 2 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — cut to a cap being twisted off.

S41 · 2:47–2:51 · 4s

VO: "The fish oil failed a sniff test the moment I actually smelled it."

Why: Sensory shots punch above their weight — the viewer smells this. The recoil is small and involuntary, not comic. Never play it broad.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 – master bathroom. Close-up, three-quarter. The woman has just brought the open fish-oil bottle up near her face and is pulling her head back and away from it, chin tucking, nose wrinkling, eyes narrowing – a small involuntary recoil, not a comic reaction. Her other hand still holds the cap. Glasses on. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level. Hard warm task light from camera-right. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds tight. She lifts the open bottle toward her nose, then pulls her head back sharply about fifteen centimetres, turning her face away and to the side. Her nose wrinkles. She holds the bottle at arm's length. Small and involuntary, not exaggerated. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the arm extends away; S42 opens with a bottle dropping into a bag.

S42 · 2:51–2:55 · 4s

VO: "I'd been treating the smoke for eight years,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

W4. L1 – master bathroom. Overhead shot looking down into the open mouth of a black plastic trash bag being held open on the counter. Bottles are falling into it – three in mid-air, a dozen already at the bottom of the bag. Her hand grips the bag's rim at the edge of frame. The bag mouth is a black void filling most of the frame. 35mm, f/2.8, directly overhead. Hard warm task light from camera-right, the bag interior in deep black. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Locked-off overhead. Three bottles drop into the bag one after another and disappear into the black. The bag rim shifts in her grip. The bag mouth wobbles slightly. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the black void of the bag → the dark doorway beside the counter in S43.

S43 · 2:55–3:00 · 5s · ♦ LOAD-BEARING SHOT

VO: "and half of what I was swallowing was feeding the fire."

Why: The bare counter with twenty-three ring-marks in the dust. This is the payoff of the entire first half — the absence, plus the physical evidence of how long they sat there. It's the single most shareable frame in the film. Hold five seconds and let the music breathe out.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L1 – master bathroom. Wide static shot, straight on to the vanity, matched exactly to the framing of S01. The counter is now completely bare – and the cream quartz is covered in twenty-plus faint circular dust rings and dried water marks where the bottles stood, arranged in the same uneven double row. A tied black trash bag slumps on the floor at the edge of frame by the door. The mirror reflects an empty room. 35mm, f/4, eye level. Flat cool window light from camera-left. GRADE-A returning: flat, cool, quiet.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera perfectly locked off, matched to the S01 framing. Absolutely nothing moves in the frame for the entire duration except a slow drift of dust motes through the window light. No people enter. Complete stillness. 5 seconds.

→ hands off into Block 5: MATCH-SHAPE — one dust ring on the counter → the ring-stain under the plastic bottle on the desk. Same shape, new suspect. This is the pivot of the entire VSL.

→ continues in 04-BODY-PART-2.md (S44-S80)

HOUSE OF AYURVEDA - BATCH #173

Body Part 2

Three Days Off The Multivitamin (Story VSL)

3:00-5:52 - S44-S80 - copper, cert, transformation, close

Document 5 of 5

Avatar Supplement Graveyard · Solution-Aware

Format Story VSL · ~5:45 · 9:16 vertical · zero lip-sync

Stack Nano Banana Pro / GPT Image → image-to-video

Branch claude/ayurveda-batch-173-vsl-fb06lb

Continues from 03-BODY-PART-1.md .

Runtime note: as laid out, the assembly lands at ~5:52, seven seconds over the ~5:45 target. That's inside tolerance — but if you need it exact, take 0.5s off each of S02 · S04 · S06 · S23 · S40 and 1s off each of S15 · S21 · S25 . Do not trim S09 · S14 · S27 · S43 · S57 · S69 — those holds are the film.

BLOCK 5 — THE WATER SUSPECT + REAL COPPER · 3:00–3:40 · S44–S52

Block intent: move the villain. For 3 minutes the enemy was the pills; now it becomes the vessel. This is the category pivot that makes a copper bottle the answer to a supplement problem, and it only works if the plastic bottle is shot as genuinely disgusting and the copper mechanism is shot as genuinely old and serious.

Grade: GRADE-C hands off to GRADE-D. Amber archival, tungsten, sepia-leaning browns, halation on highlights.

S44 · 3:00–3:04 · 4s · THE PIVOT

VO: "Then I looked at what I was drinking all of it down with."

Why: Her eyes drop to the thing in her own hand. The realisation has to travel down — she's been looking at the counter for three minutes and the answer was in her fist the whole time.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L1 – master bathroom, counter now bare behind her. Close-up, slightly low angle. The woman standing still, glasses on, looking down at a scratched translucent plastic water bottle held in her own hand at chest height. Her expression is slow dawning, not surprise – mouth closed, brow gathering. The bare counter and its dust rings sit soft behind her. 85mm, f/2.0, just below eye level. Flat cool light camera-left with a warm task-light edge from camera-right. GRADE-C.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds with a faint float. Her eyes travel slowly down to the bottle in her hand and stop there. She turns the bottle a quarter turn without lifting it. Her mouth stays closed. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the bottle rotates; S45 opens on the same bottle, still.

S45 · 3:04–3:10 · 6s

VO: "The same plastic bottle I'd refilled at my desk for three years."

Why: Hero the grime. Every detail here is a small revulsion: the cloudy interior, the scratched sports cap, the peeling label, the ring stain it has burned into the desk. Shoot it like a beauty shot of something ugly.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. L4 – desk. Close three-quarter shot of a well-used translucent plastic water bottle standing on the walnut desk. It is visibly aged: the plastic clouded and hazed with fine scratches, a faint yellow cast to the interior, a scuffed sports cap with a worn bite mark, its printed label sun-bleached and peeling at one corner. Around its base, a dark overlapping ring stain worn into the desk finish. Dust in the cap's crevices. 100mm macro, f/2.5, focus on the cap and the hazed shoulder of the bottle. Hard low warm desk light from camera-right raking across the scratches. GRADE-C moving to D.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 8cm arc around the bottle, the raking light travelling across the scratched, hazed plastic and picking out every scuff. Nothing else in frame. No hands. 6 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack off the bottle to the laptop glow behind it.

S46 · 3:10–3:14 · 4s

VO: "I started reading about copper water."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L4 – desk nook, late night, room dark. Close-up from a low three-quarter, the laptop screen out of focus behind her glasses. Her reading glasses catch the screen light as two bright rectangles; her eyes are visible behind them, moving as she reads. Her chin rests on one hand. The green desk lamp is the only other light. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level. GRADE-D beginning: warmer, tungsten, deeper browns.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds tight. Her eyes track left to right twice as she reads. The screen reflections in her lenses shift as the page scrolls. She does not blink for a long beat, then blinks twice. 4 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack into the screen reflection until it blooms; open S47 in sepia.

S47 · 3:14–3:20 · 6s · ARCHIVAL

VO: "A Swiss biologist, Karl Nägeli, documented the chemistry in the late 1800s,"

Why: The authority plate. Old science is credibility the viewer can't argue with. Shoot it as a genuinely aged photograph — not a "vintage filter" on a modern shot. Grain, halation, shallow plate depth, slight bloom.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No modern people. A late-1800s European scientific laboratory. Aged sepia-brown photographic plate look. On a scarred wooden bench, a row of glass beakers and a tall glass vessel of water, brass instruments, a wooden microscope, handwritten notebooks with dip-pen script. A pair of hands in dark 19th-century shirtsleeves adjusts a small copper disc suspended in one of the water vessels. The face is out of frame. Soft window light from a tall multi-pane window camera-left with visible dust in the beam. Heavy silver-halide grain, gentle halation around the highlights, slightly soft plate edges, low saturation sepia. 50mm, f/2.8. GRADE-D at its deepest.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 6cm push into the glass vessel. The hands adjust the copper disc slightly and withdraw from frame. Dust drifts through the window beam. The image carries a faint period photographic instability – a barely perceptible flicker in exposure. 6 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the handwritten notebook edge → the printed journal page in S48.

S48 · 3:20–3:23 · 3s

VO: "the oligodynamic effect."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/2.8. Extreme close-up of a page in an old scientific journal, aged cream paper with foxing spots and a slightly furred edge, set in a dense serif typeface. Centre of frame, one phrase is clearly legible: "the oligodynamic effect", with readable body text above and below it. A faint pencil underline beneath the phrase. Warm tungsten light raking from camera-left, deep amber shadow at the frame edges. GRADE-D.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 4cm push toward the underlined phrase, which stays perfectly sharp and legible throughout. The page corner lifts a fraction. No hands. 3 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack off the page into darkness; open S49 on water in blackness.

S49 · 3:23–3:29 · 6s · THE MECHANISM

VO: "Copper releases ions into water that sits in it overnight."

Why: You cannot photograph ions, so don't try — photograph overnight. Moonlight on a still water surface inside a copper vessel, with a very slow shift in the light that reads as hours passing. Beautiful, patient, and it makes an invisible claim feel physical.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. Extreme close-up looking down into the open mouth of a hammered copper vessel filled with still water, shot in a dark room at night. The interior copper wall glows warm where a shaft of cool moonlight from a window catches it, and the water surface is a perfect black mirror holding a single soft highlight. Fine hammered facets are visible below the waterline, distorted by refraction. Everything outside the vessel mouth falls to black. 100mm macro, f/2.8, directly overhead and slightly angled. Cool moonlight key against warm copper bounce. GRADE-D.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera locked off directly above the vessel. The water surface is almost perfectly still — only the faintest slow ripple crosses it once. Over the duration the moonlight shifts gradually across the copper interior wall, as if hours are passing. No hands, no splash, no pouring. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the curved copper interior → the curved copper door handle in S50.

S50 · 3:29–3:34 · 5s

VO: "Hospitals are putting copper back on door handles for the same reason."

Why: Institutional borrowed authority in one image. Cold clinical light against warm copper is also the strongest colour contrast in the film — it makes the copper pop right before the product arrives.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No identifiable people. A modern hospital corridor, shallow and clean. Close shot of a polished copper door push-plate and lever handle on a pale door, the copper warm and slightly patinated with visible use-wear at the thumb point. Deep behind and thrown far out of focus, the corridor recedes with cool overhead clinical lighting and the blurred shape of a figure in scrubs passing. A hand enters frame and presses the copper lever down. No faces, no signage, no logos, no readable text. 85mm, f/2.0, focus locked on the handle. Cold clinical overhead light against the warm copper. GRADE-D with a cool ambient.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds on the handle. A hand enters from frame right, presses the copper lever down, and the door begins to open; the hand releases and exits. The blurred figure crosses the deep background. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the copper surface → a fake copper surface. Same colour, opposite truth.

S51 · 3:34–3:38 · 4s · THE OBJECTION

VO: "But almost everything sold as copper online is steel with a paint job,"

Why: Handle the objection with a physical fact. A chipped base showing silver underneath is instantly understood and instantly damning. This shot is what makes the SGS cert land 20 seconds later — you have to create the doubt before you resolve it.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people, no brand. 100mm macro, f/2.8. Extreme close-up of the lower edge and base of a cheap "copper-look" water bottle lying on its side on a plain grey surface. The copper-coloured coating is chipped and flaking away along the base rim, clearly revealing dull silver-grey steel underneath, with a hairline scratch dragging the paint further. The copper colour is visibly too uniform and too orange – a paint finish, not metal. No logos, no text of any kind. Hard raking light from camera-left picking out the flaked edge. GRADE-D, contrast raised.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 5cm drift along the chipped base rim, the raking light travelling across the flaked coating and the exposed steel beneath. No hands. 4 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack off the chipped base to a screen glow; open S52 already soft.

S52 · 3:38–3:40 · 2s

VO: "so I looked for one I could actually verify."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W4. L4 — desk nook, night. Close-up over her shoulder, out of focus, of her thumb scrolling a phone screen in a dark room — then stopping. The screen content is not readable, just a warm blur of light. Her glasses catch a sliver of the glow at the edge of frame. 85mm, f/1.8, focus on her thumb. GRADE-D.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. Her thumb flicks upward twice, fast, then stops dead and lifts off the screen. Complete stillness for the last beat. 2 seconds. → hands off into Block 6: MATCH-ACTION — thumb lifts; S53 opens with hands opening a box.

BLOCK 6 — THE BOTTLE + THE CERT · 3:40–4:20 · S53–S60

Block intent: de-risk. This block is not selling, it is proving — and the proof has to be replicable by the viewer. The magnet test is the star: it's the only claim in the film they can perform themselves in ten seconds.

◆ REAL-ASSET BLOCK. Attach the real product photo as a second reference on every bottle shot. The SGS certificate and the verification page are comped from the real documents in post — never generated. See Bible §1.7.

Grade: GRADE-D warming into GRADE-E. Copper against clean daylight.

S53 · 3:40–3:45 · 5s

VO: "The one I kept is House of Ayurveda."

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: CHAR_REF + PRODUCT_REF]

W1. L2 – kitchen. Overhead close shot of her hands lifting the copper bottle out of an opened shipping box on the butcher-block island, tissue paper folded back around it. The bottle is EXACTLY the product in the attached product reference – same form, same hammered finish, same proportions, same cap; do not redesign or embellish it. Her hands hold it carefully with both palms. Kraft box, crumpled tissue, the box flaps open. 50mm, f/2.8, overhead. Clean cool morning daylight from a window camera-left, catching the hammered facets. GRADE-E beginning: warm, clean, open shadows.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds overhead. Her hands lift the bottle clear of the tissue and rotate it slowly about 30 degrees, the daylight travelling across the hammered facets. The tissue paper shifts and settles. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the bottle sets down; S54 opens with it already standing beside paper.

S54 · 3:45–3:50 · 5s · ♦ REAL ASSET

VO: "SGS lab certified at 99.9% pure copper,"

Why: The cert sits next to the bottle like evidence on a table, not like a badge on a landing page. Generate the plate empty; comp the real document.

PLATE IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. L2 – kitchen island. Overhead shot of the butcher-block surface. The copper bottle (exactly as the attached product reference) stands upright at frame left, and beside it at frame right lies a single sheet of plain white A4 paper, blank, laid flat and slightly angled, with one soft crease from being folded in three. Clean cool morning daylight from camera-left, a soft shadow from the bottle falling across the top corner of the page. 50mm, f/4, directly overhead, page perfectly flat to camera for a clean comp. Leave the paper completely blank. GRADE-E.

POST: track and comp the real SGS certificate onto the blank page. Match the paper's shadow and the bottle's cast shadow over it. Do not generate certificate text.

MOTION (I2V) Locked-off overhead, no camera move at all – keep it perfectly static so the certificate comp tracks cleanly. Only the faintest lift at one corner of the paper. No hands enter. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the page → a tighter crop of the same page.

S55 · 3:50–3:54 · 4s · ♦ REAL ASSET

VO: "the same testing standard hospitals use,"

PLATE IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. 100mm macro, f/3.5. Extreme close-up, dead flat to camera, of the lower corner of a blank sheet of white certificate-weight paper on a wood surface – showing only the paper's subtle texture, a faint deboss impression in the fibre where a seal would sit, and one soft fold crease. No text, no logo, no seal graphic – leave the area completely blank for compositing. Warm side light raking from camera-left picking out the paper fibre and the deboss. GRADE-E.

POST: comp the real certificate's seal / accreditation corner into the debossed area.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 4cm push toward the debossed area of the paper. Absolutely no other movement – static enough for a clean track. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — a hand enters and picks up a phone.

S56 · 3:54–4:00 · 6s · ♦ REAL SCREEN RECORDING

VO: "published so you can cross-check it in the public database."

Why: The strongest de-risk in the whole VSL — she doesn't say "trust us," she says "go look." Which means the screen must be real. Shoot or record the actual verification flow on a real phone: cert number typed in, result returned. Anything generated here is a fabricated record and will not survive scrutiny.

PLATE IMAGE — GPT Image · [ATTACH: CHAR_REF]

W1. L2 – kitchen island. Close over-the-shoulder shot: the woman holding a phone in one hand at chest height, the copper bottle and a sheet of paper on the island below, slightly out of focus. The phone screen is a FLAT, EVEN, PURE WHITE RECTANGLE with no content on it at all – a clean blank plate for compositing, held square and steady to camera with no glare, no fingerprints and no reflections on the glass. Her thumb rests at the bottom edge of the screen. 50mm, f/2.8, over her shoulder, the phone screen flat to the lens. Clean cool morning daylight from camera-left. GRADE-E.

POST: track and comp the real screen recording of the public SGS verification database — certificate number entered, record returned. Add a subtle screen-glow spill onto her thumb.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds over her shoulder with a faint handheld float. The phone stays square and steady to camera. Her thumb taps once at the bottom of the screen and returns to rest. Keep the phone plane as stable as possible for tracking. 6 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — she sets the phone down; a hand comes back with a magnet.

S57 · 4:00–4:06 · 6s · ♦ THE MONEY SHOT

VO: "The magnet dropped right off, real copper isn't magnetic."

Why: The single best shot in the film for conversion. It's a physical test the viewer can run on their own bottle in ten seconds, and it makes every competitor look like a liar. Shoot it as one unbroken take — magnet touches, holds for a beat, slides, falls, hits the counter. If you cut inside this action, you destroy it. Nobody believes an edited proof.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No face. L2 – kitchen island. Close side-on shot of the copper bottle standing upright on the butcher-block (exactly the attached product reference – same finish, same proportions). A woman's fingers hold a small silver disc magnet flat against the curved side of the bottle, mid-height. The magnet is clearly not adhering – there is no pull, the fingers are doing all the holding. Hammered facets catch the daylight around it. 100mm macro, f/2.8, side-on at bottle mid-height, the counter surface visible below in the lower third for the fall. Clean cool morning daylight from camera-left. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V)

ONE CONTINUOUS TAKE, camera locked off side-on. The fingers holding the small magnet against the copper bottle slowly open and withdraw. The magnet does not stick – it immediately slides down the curved copper surface, falls away from the bottle, drops to the counter, bounces once and settles flat. The bottle does not move or wobble. No cut, no camera move, no slow motion – real-time, single unbroken action. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the settled magnet on the wood → a hammered facet at the same scale.

S58 · 4:06–4:11 · 5s

VO: "The hammering was uneven the way 72 hours of hand work shows up."

Why: Craft proof. Raking light across the facets so the unevenness is the hero — machine-perfect would undermine the claim. Let the irregularity read.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. Extreme macro across the hammered surface of the copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference), filling the frame. Each hammer facet is a slightly different size and depth, some overlapping, a few shallower than others – visibly hand-worked and not machine-uniform. Fine tool marks and a faint warm patina in the recesses. A hard raking light from camera-left skims the surface so every facet edge catches a highlight and each depression holds a small shadow. 100mm macro, f/4, extremely shallow plane of focus running diagonally across the facets. GRADE-E with strong copper warmth.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 5cm slide across the hammered surface, the raking highlight travelling from facet to facet and the shallow focus plane sweeping with it. No hands. Nothing else in frame. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack out to copper bokeh; open S59 already soft and warm.

S59 · 4:11–4:15 · 4s

VO: "I bought one for me,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. L3 – her bedroom, evening. The copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference) standing filled on the walnut nightstand beside the small brass alarm clock and a paperback. A warm bedside lamp is the only light, its glow wrapping the copper and throwing a long soft shadow across the wood. The oatmeal linen bed is soft and dark behind. 50mm, f/2.0, low, at nightstand height. GRADE-F beginning: honey-warm tungsten, rich and soft.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 6cm push toward the bottle on the nightstand. The lamp glow shifts subtly across the copper. Nothing else moves – a quiet, settled frame. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the bottle silhouette → a second identical bottle in a box.

S60 · 4:15–4:20 · 5s

VO: "and two weeks later a second for my friend Maggie, six years into a twenty-bottle stack of her own."

Why: Social proof without a second character to lock. Keep Maggie off camera — a shipping label with her name and a glimpse of her crowded counter tells you everything, costs one generation, and avoids a second face that could drift. If you want Maggie on screen later, that's a separate character lock; don't improvise it here.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No faces. A kraft shipping box on a different kitchen counter — a warmer, more cluttered kitchen than hers, clearly someone else's home. The box is open, tissue folded back, the copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference) nestled inside. A small handwritten card rests on the box flap reading "Maggie —". Thrown out of focus behind the box, a long crowded row of about twenty supplement bottles on that counter. A woman's hands, out of focus at the frame edge, reach toward the box. 50mm, f/2.2, overhead and slightly angled, focus on the box and card. Warm kitchen daylight. GRADE-E/F.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. The out-of-focus hands reach in from frame edge and lift the tissue back further, revealing more of the copper. The handwritten card slides a little. No faces enter frame. 5 seconds. → hands off into Block 7: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack from the box back to the blurred bottle row behind it, hold on the blur, then cut. Her friend's stack dissolving is the bridge into her own recovery.

BLOCK 7 — TRANSFORMATION · 4:20–5:12 · S61–S72

Block intent: the payoff — and it is deliberately not a symptom payoff. It's relational. The dinner table is the close of this film, not the product. Slow down here: this block has the longest holds and the fullest music. Wardrobe moves to W5 at S66; that's your visual "three weeks later."

Grade: GRADE-E through S65, then GRADE-F from the dinner onward. Warmest light in the film.

S61 · 4:20–4:26 · 6s

VO: "Week one I just used it, told myself it might do nothing."

Why: Play it unceremoniously. She fills it at the sink at night without looking at it, the way you'd fill any bottle. Scepticism is credible; reverence is an ad.

IMAGE — GPT Image · [ATTACH: CHAR_REF + PRODUCT_REF]

W1. L2 – kitchen at night, only the under-cabinet light on. Medium shot from the side of the woman filling the copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference) at the farmhouse sink. She is looking out of the window above the sink, not at the bottle – completely routine, mildly bored, one hip against the counter. Warm under-cabinet light on the copper and her hands, the rest of the kitchen dark. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level from her side. GRADE-F: honey-warm practical, soft and low key.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds from her side. Water runs into the bottle. She keeps looking out of the dark window, not at the bottle, then shuts off the tap and lifts the bottle out of the sink without examining it. Ordinary, unceremonious. 6 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the round bottle mouth → the round phone-screen corner radius in S62.

S62 · 4:26–4:30 · 4s

VO: "Week two, on a Tuesday,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No face. L3 – her bedroom, early morning. Close overhead shot of a phone lying face-up on the nightstand, its lock screen clearly legible: "TUESDAY" above the time "6:58". The screen is bright against the dim room. A corner of the copper bottle base and the brass clock sit soft at the frame edge. Her hand rests beside the phone, not holding it. 50mm, f/2.5, overhead. Soft cool early daylight with a warm lamp edge. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds overhead. Her hand moves slightly on the nightstand. The phone screen brightness fades down one step. The screen text stays legible throughout. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her hand moves; S63 opens with her already waking.

S63 · 4:30–4:37 · 7s

VO: "I woke up without the dread I'd been waking up with for I don't even know how long."

Why: The hardest shot in the film to act, and the reason it works: it's about the absence of something. No relief, no smile — just a face that isn't braced. Contrast it against S27 (the airless 3am overhead) by lighting it the exact opposite way: broad, warm, open. Seven seconds is right. Let the music open here.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W2. L3 — her own bedroom, morning. Close-up, the woman lying on her side on oatmeal linen, just woken, eyes open and calm. Her face is genuinely relaxed — no furrow between the brows, jaw unclenched, mouth soft. Not happy, not smiling: simply not braced. Hair slept-on across the pillow. Broad soft warm morning light through a sheer curtain falls across the whole frame with open, gentle shadows. 85mm, f/2.0, camera at pillow height, very close.
GRADE-E: warm returning daylight, open shadows, gentle saturation.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds very close at pillow height, nearly static. She blinks slowly twice. She takes one full, easy breath in and out — her shoulder rises and falls. Her eyes stay open and calm the whole time. No smile at any point. She never looks at the camera. 7 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — she starts to sit up; S64 opens with her already up and moving.

S64 · 4:37–4:41 · 4s

VO: "I didn't notice it that morning."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L2 — kitchen, morning. Wide-ish shot of the woman moving through an ordinary morning: pouring coffee at the counter with her back half to camera, cardigan on, hair not yet done. Completely unremarkable, mid-routine, nothing notable happening. The copper bottle sits on the counter behind her, not the focus. 35mm, f/4, eye level from across the kitchen.
GRADE-E: clean warm daylight.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds across the kitchen with a light handheld drift. She finishes pouring, sets the pot down, and moves out of frame right without pausing. The kitchen is left empty. Ordinary, unhurried. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the empty kitchen frame → the identical pillow framing of S65.

S65 · 4:41–4:47 · 6s

VO: "I noticed it the next Tuesday when it happened again."

Why: Shoot this identically to S63 — same lens, same height, same light, same framing. The repetition IS the storytelling: the viewer recognises the frame before the VO explains it. The only difference is that this time she stops and registers it.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W2. L3 – her bedroom, morning. EXACTLY the same framing, lens, height and lighting as S63: close-up, the woman on her side on oatmeal linen, just woken, broad soft warm morning light through a sheer curtain. Identical composition. The only difference is her expression – her eyes are open and she is very slightly frowning, as if noticing something. 85mm, f/2.0, camera at pillow height. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds at pillow height, matched exactly to the earlier shot. She blinks, then her brow gathers very slightly. She lifts her head about ten centimetres off the pillow and stops there, looking at nothing, realising something. She stays still. No smile. 6 seconds.

→ hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — the warm morning blooms; cut into the warmer pendant light of dinner. This is the time-jump to week three.

S66 · 4:47–4:53 · 6s · WARDROBE → W5

VO: "Week three, my husband sat across from me at dinner"

IMAGE — GPT Image

W5 – soft clay-rust button blouse, no cardigan, hair tucked behind one ear, small gold studs. L7 – dining room, evening. Two-shot across a small round table under a single low warm pendant. The woman sits at one side with a bowl of pasta, mid-meal, relaxed, one elbow on the table. Across from her, her husband – the same man as the bathroom doorway shot, grey at the temples – sits with his own bowl, looking at her. One glass of red wine. The pendant is the only light, pooling on the table and falling off into a dark room. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level from the end of the table so both are in frame. GRADE-F: honey-warm practical, rich, creamy rolloff.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds at the end of the table with a soft handheld float. She is mid-sentence, gesturing loosely with her fork, and finishes with a small easy laugh. He is watching her rather than eating, his fork resting in the bowl. Neither looks at the camera. 6 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her laugh fades as she looks up; S67 opens on his face.

S67 · 4:53–4:58 · 5s

VO: "and said, 'I don't know what changed.'"

IMAGE — GPT Image

L7 – dining room. Medium close-up of the husband across the table, warm pendant light from above catching his forehead and cheekbones, eyes in soft shadow. He has stopped eating; his hands rest either side of his bowl. He is looking directly at her – off camera – with a plain, unguarded expression, mid-sentence, choosing his words. Not romantic, not performative: honest. Behind him the dark dining room. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level from her side of the table. GRADE-F.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds at eye level with a faint float. He speaks – a short sentence – his mouth moving naturally, then stops and keeps looking at her. He does not smile. He does not look at the camera. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — reverse to her, on the same eyeline, at the same distance.

S68 · 4:58–5:02 · 4s

VO: "'You laugh at the same things again.'"

Why: The line lands. She hears it before she reacts to it — a beat of nothing, then her face changes. Don't let the reaction start on the first frame; the delay is what makes it real.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W5. L7 – dining room. Medium close-up of the woman on the reverse, matched to the husband's framing. Warm pendant light from above. Her expression is caught in the half-second of hearing something she wasn't prepared for – her small laugh has already faded, her lips are just parting, her eyes are fixed on his and starting to glass over slightly. Not crying yet. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level from his side of the table. GRADE-F.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. She is still for a full beat, listening. Then her lips part slightly, she blinks once, and her chin tightens almost imperceptibly. Her eyes stay on his. She does not speak. She does not look at the camera. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her eyes begin to drop; S69 continues the drop.

S69 · 5:02–5:07 · 5s · ♦ THE EMOTIONAL PEAK

VO: "I cried into my pasta."

Why: The most human moment in the film. She looks down, one tear, and then the small embarrassed laugh at herself. The laugh is essential — it's what stops this being maudlin and makes it recognisable. Longest hold in the back half. Music at its fullest, then pull back.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W5. L7 – dining room. Close-up of the woman looking down into her pasta bowl, chin lowered, one hand coming up toward her face. A single tear has just cleared her lower lashline on one cheek. Her mouth is caught between crying and a small embarrassed laugh at herself – slightly upturned at one corner. Warm pendant light from directly above, catching the wet on her cheek. Real, undramatic, unglamorous. 85mm, f/2.0, eye level, tight. GRADE-F.

MOTION (I2V)

Camera holds tight with the faintest float. She looks down into the bowl. A tear runs and she catches it with the side of one finger. She lets out a short embarrassed laugh through her nose and shakes her head slightly at herself, still looking down. She does not look up and does not look at the camera. 5 seconds.

→ hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her hand lowers to the table; S70 opens with his hand arriving on it.

S70 · 5:07–5:10 · 3s

VO: "It had been a long time since he'd said something like that."

IMAGE — GPT Image

No faces. L7 – dining room. Close overhead-ish shot of the tabletop: her hand resting flat beside her pasta bowl, and his hand arriving over it and settling. Both hands are their real age – visible veins, a little sun damage, two worn wedding bands. Warm pendant light pooling on the wood and the two hands, everything beyond falling to dark. 85mm, f/2.0, high angle across the table. GRADE-F at its warmest.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds high across the table. His hand comes into frame and settles over hers. Her fingers turn slightly to meet it. Neither hand grips – they just rest. Nothing else moves. 3 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — the warm pendant pool falls to shadow; open S71 in a cool closet.

S71 • 5:10–5:14 • 4s

VO: "The 30-day guarantee box is still folded in my closet."

Why: The guarantee is de-risking, but unused it becomes proof. Show it flat, folded, put away on a shelf — the physical evidence of a refund she never claimed.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No face. L8 – hall closet. Close shot of a white wire shelf holding folded linens, and tucked beside them a flat-folded kraft cardboard box with its flaps neatly tucked in and a peeled shipping label residue on one face. No printed claims or logos are legible on the box. Her hand rests on the shelf edge at the frame's edge. Cool, soft, indirect light from the hallway behind camera. GRADE-E, quiet and neutral.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. Her hand pats the folded box once, flat, and withdraws from frame. The box does not move. 4 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — the hand withdraws; S72 opens with a door swinging closed.

S72 · 5:14–5:17 · 3s

VO: "I never needed it."

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L8 – hallway outside the closet. Medium shot of the woman pushing the closet door closed, her hand flat on it, face in three-quarter profile and calm. No emotion being performed – just someone closing a door. Soft indirect hallway light. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. She pushes the closet door closed in one easy movement until it latches, and lets her hand drop. She turns and walks out of frame right. 3 seconds. → hands off into Block 8:

PAN-THROUGH — she exits right; S73 opens with a lateral drift right.

BLOCK 8 — MICRO-COMMITMENT + CLOSE · 5:17–5:52 · S73–S80

Block intent: hand off to Page 1 without ever behaving like an ad. No price, no badge, no urgency, no discount, no countdown. Value is communicated by one comparison shot and nothing else. The close is a question, not a command — solution-aware buyers convert on a question they can't stop asking themselves.

Grade: GRADE-F resolving into clean warm daylight for the hero and CTA.

S73 · 5:17–5:23 · 6s · VALUE COMPARISON (no price)

VO: "It cost me less than a single month of the stack I'd been religious about."

Why: One frame does the entire price argument: the bulging trash bag of twenty-three bottles on one side, one copper bottle on the other. The viewer prices it themselves, which is always more persuasive than a number — and it keeps the creative price-agnostic across offers.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. L2 – kitchen, clean morning daylight. Single wide shot on the butcher-block island, composed in two halves. On the left half: the tied, bulging black trash bag slumped on the counter, its outline clearly full of bottle shapes, with three or four supplement bottles spilled loose beside it. On the right half: the single copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference) standing upright and alone with clear empty counter space around it. Equal weight to both halves, one continuous surface, no graphics, no text, no price, no split-screen line. 35mm, f/4, eye level across the counter. Clean cool morning daylight from camera-left. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 10cm lateral drift left to right, moving from the bulk of the trash bag across to the single standing bottle. Nothing in the frame moves. No hands, no text. 6 seconds. → hands off: PAN-THROUGH — the drift continues into S74, a different counter entirely.

S74 · 5:23–5:28 · 5s · THE VIEWER'S BATHROOM

VO: "So if your bathroom counter has a row of bottles on it"

Why: Break the frame. This is not her bathroom — it's an anonymous one, a stand-in for the viewer's. No character, no identifying detail, and shot at the height you'd see your own counter from. It's the closest thing to eye contact this film has.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. A different, anonymous bathroom — plainer than hers: white laminate counter, white subway tile, a simple round mirror, a builder-grade chrome faucet. On the counter, a row of about a dozen assorted supplement bottles, a pill organiser, and a toothbrush cup. Deliberately generic and unstyled, as if it belongs to anyone. Nothing identifies the owner. 35mm, f/4, eye level, straight on, framed like you are standing at your own counter looking down at it. Flat neutral daylight from camera-right. Neutral grade, no warmth.

MOTION (I2V) Very slow 8cm push toward the row of bottles on the anonymous counter. Nothing moves. No people. Perfectly still and quiet. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — a hand enters and hovers.

S75 · 5:28–5:32 · 4s

VO: "and you keep telling yourself the stack is working,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No face. The same anonymous bathroom counter. Close shot of an unidentified hand reaching toward the row of supplement bottles and stopping short – hovering above them, fingers slightly curled, not picking anything up. Deliberately anonymous: a plain sleeve, no rings, no distinguishing features, shot so the hand could belong to anyone. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level across the counter, focus on the hovering hand. Flat neutral daylight. Neutral grade.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. The hand reaches toward the bottles, slows, and stops in mid-air above them. It hovers, then withdraws slightly without taking anything. 4 seconds. → hands off: FOCUS-HANDOFF — rack off the hand to soft white; return to her.

S76 · 5:32–5:37 · 5s

VO: "ask what I finally asked:"

Why: Back to her, at her now-bare counter. She's present and settled but — per the zero-lip-sync rule — she is not talking to camera. She's just standing in the room the film started in, and it's empty now. That's the argument.

IMAGE — GPT Image

W1. L1 – master bathroom, counter completely bare and clean, the dust rings now wiped away. The copper bottle stands alone on it. Medium shot of the woman standing at the counter, turned three-quarters toward camera but looking down at the bare surface and the bottle, not at the lens. Her posture is settled, shoulders down, hands resting on the counter edge. Calm, unhurried. 50mm, f/2.2, eye level. Clean warm morning daylight from camera-left, open shadows. GRADE-E/F.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds with a faint float. She runs one hand slowly along the bare counter surface and lets it rest. She takes one easy breath. Her eyes stay down on the counter – she never looks into the lens. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-ACTION — her eyeline goes to the bottles; cut to what she's looking at.

S77 · 5:37–5:42 · 5s

VO: "what if one of them has been making you worse,"

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro

No people. The anonymous bathroom counter again. Close shot down the row of a dozen supplement bottles, all of them thrown soft and out of focus – except one single white bottle near the centre of the row which is razor sharp and isolated in the plane of focus. No label text is legible on any of them. 85mm, f/1.8, counter height, looking down the row. Flat neutral daylight. Neutral grade.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds. The focus drifts very slowly along the row, briefly sharpening a second bottle and then settling back on the first. Nothing else moves. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the isolated bottle → the plastic bottle in the pairing of S78.

S78 · 5:42–5:47 · 5s

VO: "and what you're drinking it all down with is the real problem?"

Why: The final reframe in one image: the scratched plastic bottle and the copper bottle side by side, same light, same height. No text, no arrow, no "vs." — just let the two objects argue.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. L2 – kitchen island. Two bottles standing side by side on the butcher-block, shot straight on at bottle height. On the left, the old scratched cloudy plastic water bottle with its peeling label and worn cap. On the right, the copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference), hammered and warm. Same light on both, same distance, equal framing, no graphics or text of any kind. 85mm, f/2.8, bottle height. Clean cool morning daylight from camera-left. GRADE-E.

MOTION (I2V) Camera holds straight on. Focus racks slowly from the scratched plastic bottle across to the copper one and stays there. Neither bottle moves. No hands, no text. 5 seconds. → hands off: MATCH-SHAPE — the copper bottle holds its screen position into the hero shot.

S79 · 5:47–5:51 · 4s · HERO

VO: "This is the one I replaced twenty-three bottles with."

Why: The only hero shot in the film, and it arrives at 5:47. Everything before it earned the right. Keep it in her real kitchen with real morning light — a studio product shot here would undo five minutes of documentary trust in one frame.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. L2 – kitchen island, morning. The copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference – do not restyle it) standing alone on the warm oak butcher-block, filled, with a broad clean band of morning sunlight from a window camera-left falling across it and the hammered facets catching it. Completely bare counter around it. A soft shadow stretches to the right. Real kitchen depth soft behind – no studio sweep, no seamless backdrop, no graphics. 50mm, f/2.5, slightly below bottle height so it reads with quiet authority. GRADE-E/F: clean warm daylight.

MOTION (I2V) Extremely slow 6cm push toward the bottle. The band of sunlight travels a few millimetres across the hammered facets. Nothing else in the frame. No hands, no text. 4 seconds. → hands off: LIGHT-WIPE — the sunlight band blooms across the lens; cut inside the bloom to the CTA.

S80 · 5:51–5:52+ · CTA CARD (hold to end)

VO: "Here's the full breakdown."

Why: The CTA is an article, not an offer — that's the entire micro-commitment. Reading a breakdown is a much smaller ask than buying a bottle, which is what makes this close convert. Keep the card quiet: no price, no discount, no urgency graphic, no stars, no countdown.

IMAGE — Nano Banana Pro · [ATTACH: PRODUCT_REF]

No people. Clean end card, vertical 9:16. The copper bottle (exactly the attached product reference) sitting small and low in the lower third on a plain warm off-white surface with soft natural daylight and a gentle shadow. The upper two thirds are clean, uncluttered negative space in the same warm off-white, deliberately left empty for the title and button to be laid over in post. No text, no graphics, no logos, no badges rendered in the image. 50mm, f/4, straight on. Warm, clean, minimal. GRADE-F.

POST — lay over the plate: - Headline card treatment matching the Page 1 (Dr. Chen) advertorial - A single quiet button/label: Read the full breakdown - Nothing else. No price. No discount. No badge. No timer. No star rating.

MOTION (I2V) Almost imperceptible slow push, 3cm, on the still card. The daylight and shadow are static. Nothing moves. Hold long enough to lay the title and button over and let the last VO line land. 4 seconds.

ASSEMBLY QC — run this before you send the cut

- [] Face-match pass. Scrub all 93 shots at 25% speed watching only her face. Any drift = regenerate, don't grade around it.
- [] No smile before 4:47. Check S28 and S53 especially — they're the two most likely to sneak one in.
- [] No product before 3:40. Scan the backgrounds of S01–S52 for a stray copper bottle.
- [] No eye contact with the lens anywhere. Zero lip-sync means zero direct address. S76 is the risky one.
- [] Real assets in place: SGS cert (S54, S55), verification screen recording (S56), product ref on all 9 product shots.
- [] Text legibility: S32, S36, S38, S40, S48, S62 must be readable at phone size with sound off. Regenerate rather than upscale.
- [] S57 is one unbroken take. No cut inside the magnet fall.
- [] S01 and S43 are framed identically. Same for S63/S65 and S12/S14. If they're not, the three best edits in the film don't land.
- [] Grade continuity: the arc from A → B → C → D → E → F should be invisible shot-to-shot and obvious end-to-end.

- [] Music: sparse through Block 2, out entirely under S09 and S14, lift at S28, tighten through Block 4, swell at S66-S69, resolve under S79-S80.
- [] Picture leads VO by ~4 frames on every cut.
- [] Runtime lands ~5:52. Trim per the note at the top of this file if 5:45 is hard.